CRASH KILLS CHAUFFEUR, 2 HURT

Not Much in the Bowl

Funds lacking, Cleveland is beset by a serious relief problem. Of 300,000 receiving aid, more than 75,000 are on direct relief. This child, for one, is hungry and needs food and clothing. Her problem, as well as those of the thousands of others, have been placed in the hands of an emergency citizens committee, named by Mayor Harold H. Burton, awaiting action by the Ohio legislature.

(Picture on Page 2)

CONNEAUT — (AP) — George Rodebaugh, brother-in-law of Miss Theresa Ludwig, said today the self-slain divorcee had left a letter addressed to a Canton attorney.

Rodebaugh asserted he had mailed the letter yesterday afternoon, shortly after the body was found and her death was recorded as suicide.

The brother-in-law, who operates a furniture and upholstery show here, said he had no idea of the letter's contents.

Not Received Yet.

The Canton attorney, William B. Quinn, was out of town today, but his son, William R. Quinn, said no such letter had been received.

Police Chief Ira Manderbaugh of Canton had announced earlier he was seeking the letter with the hope of throwing some light on the suicide, which wrote a question mark behind the mysterious shotgun killing of Mrs. Deuber S. Cable in Canton 14 months ago.

For several years, Cable told police after his wife's death, he had maintained Miss Ludwig in an Akron apartment. A few hours before she was found dead, Miss Ludwig visited Cable in Canton demanding money, the contractor said.

Commenting on the finding of a blond wig in the motor car under which Miss Ludwig met death, Rodebaugh said the divorcee had worn the wig around Conneaut in an effort to keep the curious away from her.

Didn't Talk of Case.

Rodebaugh told newsmen Miss Ludwig rarely commented on the case, in which a charge of suspi-

Operation Performed, Baby Rests Well

Dr. Herman Colan, left, whose infant daughter was threatened with blindness as the result of a tumerous growth on the optic nerve, confers with his attorney, Samuel Hoffman, center, and Dr. Robert H. Good, right, just before the latter operated on the child. The operation was reported to be successful, and the child, Helaine, was resting easily today, and may be able to see with her right eye. Lower picture shows two views of Helaine.

Try to Save Baby Girl's Other Eye

Scientists Seek to Learn If Remaining Optic Must Be Removed.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — As Baby Helaine Colan, one eye gone, slept peacefully, a supreme court of medicine today struggled with another momentous decision—whether the remaining eye should be removed, leaving the five-weeks-old infant totally blind.

Days of terrific mental conflict on the part of the baby's parents ended yesterday when the eye was removed to stave off certain death from the ravages of cancerous tumor.

Today eminent scientists studied the blind eye in an effort to extract from it data which might permit them to save the other. This jury of specialists was to decide whether to operate or attempt to cure the dread infection.

But it will take a week before the doctors can tell if even her right eye is to be saved. It will take even longer than that to determine if her very life is to be spared.

Eleven of the city's ablest specialists voted unhesitatingly yesterday to take the chance. Their verdict met the tearful approval of the baby's family, who had already surrendered their right of final judgment.

Every minute counted. The dread glioma had already blinded the left eye and was spreading swiftly. It was feared the right eye might already be affected. Within days, perhaps hours, even an operation would be of no use as the infection traveled to the brain — and death.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university's medical school, who acted as chairman of the group telephoned the Garfield park hospital to prepare for the operation.

Light tests were quickly performed and showed sight still remained in the right eye while that in the left was gone. Eleven more minutes passed and the delicate bit of surgery was over.

Dr. Robert H. Good, eye specialist at the hospital, assisted by Dr. Edward F. Garraghan, pronounced it a success.

COUNTY'S 6TH FATALITY

2 Kenton Women Trapped in Wreckage, Injured; Machine Turns Over 3 Times.

A trip by two Kenton women to visit the sister of one at Ashland today had resulted in the death of their chauffeur and the injury of the women.

William C. Banks, 53, of Kenton, driver of the automobile, was instantly killed when he was thrown 75 feet from the car as it struck a roadside culvert and turned over three times in its wild dash through a field off Park avenue west road, five miles west of Mansfield at 4 p. m. yesterday.

His employer, Mrs. J. T. Glenn, 48, and Mrs. Clay McBeth, about 25, who were riding in the rear seat of a 1936 coach, were taken to General hospital.

Mrs. Glenn, wife of the Hardin county supervisor of aid for the aged, suffered bruises and lacerations and has a blood clot on her left hip, hospital attendants reported. Mrs. McBeth, wife of a Kenton insurance agent, is suffering from several fractured ribs and a heart injury.

Both were reported in "fairly good" condition today, hospital attaches said.

Banks' death was the sixth traffic fatality recorded in Richland county this year. At this time last year nine persons had lost their lives in auto accidents.

Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. McBeth were en route to Ashland at the time of the accident to visit a sister of the former.

350 'Go to Bat' for Fund As Drive Opens

Modern Philosophy's 'Live and Help Live' Social Worker Tells Volunteers Who Seek $53,950 For City Agencies.

"Live and help live!"

With this theme to inspire them in their volunteer service to their community, more than 350 workers this morning began a concerted and determined campaign to raise $53,950 for the support of Mansfield's Community Fund agencies for another year.

The theme was given them last night at the annual conference dinner held at First Methodist Episcopal church formally opening the 1938-39 drive. Rev. Frank Baker, director of the Goodwill Industries of Cleveland who has been engaged in welfare and character building work in Cleveland for a number of years, was the speaker.

Calls for Extra Effort.

The dinner was attended by about 150 workers and community leaders. Arthur S. Hughes, general chairman of the campaign, who presided at the meeting, urged workers to put greater effort into the drive than ever before, in view of the fact that there are fewer persons to give this year.

Every divisional major was urged to have his workers at the first report luncheon meeting tomorrow noon at First Methodist church, and to give an encouraging report.

Rev. Baker, in his talk to workers, pointed out that down through the ages has come the old question "Am I my brother's keeper?" and that good citizens and good neighbors everywhere have given the right answer: "I am."

"In the ages before the dawn of civilization every man's philosophy was for the survival of the fittest, but today that fallacy serves only as the alibi of the self-centered," he said. "And then came the philosophy of 'live and let live,' but we've outgrown that too, and today the good citizen, the Christian and the community builder has adopted 'live and help live' as the slogan by which to build his life, and that spirit of sharing what we have is the great-

NEEDY GET AID

Cleveland's $70,000 Fund to Give Temporary Relief.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—An emergency $70,000 fund provided by city council today provided a temporary solution of the relief crisis here.

The $70,000, transferred by council from the WPA sponsor fund to the direct relief fund, will provide for the most needy of Cleveland's 75,000 relief cases for perhaps a week, Mayor Harold H. Burton said.

The first emergency fund of $50,000, voted by council last Wednesday night, was exhausted yesterday.

A workers' alliance committee of relief clients announced it would meet with Burton today to demand immediate relief orders, with funds to come from the city's sinking fund.

Brown, White Sox Pitcher, Has Operation on Arm.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Clint Brown, ace relief pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, underwent an operation today for the removal of a chipped bone in his salary arm.

"The operation was very successful," said Dr. Phil Kreuscher. "I think it will be at least three months before he will be able to start pitching again."

Yes sir, the Want Ads take no holiday. They'll be renting boats and horses, trailers and cottages, selling fishing and bait, tents and furnishings, finding buyers for homes and lots. Of course, it's their inning at bat, as spring time is always the BEST Want Ad season.

West Reported In Line For Currency Comptroller's Job

Charles West, forgotten man of the interior department, but a presidential favorite, today stood in line for a juicier plum in the way of a federal job than any for which he has yet been mentioned—and he has been mentioned for plenty of them.

United Press dispatches from Washington today said that President Roosevelt was expected to send to the senate within a few days the nomination of West for the position of comptroller of the currency, a post which has been vacant since the retirement of J. F. T. O'Connor.

West, former congressman from the 17th Ohio district, of which Richland county is a part, is now undersecretary of the interior, but has incurred the disfavor of his superior, Secretary Ickes, who recently removed all the furniture from West's office, and then gave the office to another assistant.

If he should be nominated and confirmed for comptroller, West would have an annual salary of $15,000. His present salary is $10,000.

Some months ago there were reports that the former Ohio congressman, whom President Roosevelt elevated to the position of confidential White House liaison man after his defeat in the 1934 senatorial race, was losing favor in administration circles. West was seen less frequently on Capitol Hill, where he had once been so effective in aiding passage of administration legislation, and this

ENGLISH MINE BLAST KILLS 72

Others Remain Entombed in Wreckage of Gas Explosions; Rescue 28 Injured.

(By Associated Press)

DUCKMANTON, Derbyshire, England—Gas explosions killed at least 72 miners in the Markham colliery today. Rescue crews brought 49 injured men out of the wrecked workings and a number of others still were entombed.

Rescue squad workers said they feared the death list would reach a still higher figure.

Sobbing women gathered around the pithead as the dead and injured were brought to the surface. Scenes were particularly grievous in the little mortuary where wives and relatives sought to identify the bodies, marked by yellow tags.

One woman found that four members of her family still were in the blasted workings, their fate undetermined.

The two terrific explosions, trapping an entire shift in the colliery, spread grief through the little village of Duckmanton, a neat cluster of red brick cottages lying some distance from the mine.

Scores of rescuers, stripped to the waist, fought through roof falls toward the trapped men. Police broadcast a call for oxygen.

Rescuers, with gas masks, sealed up one section of the pit to prevent gas from seeping through to the trapped miners.

The second explosion occurred shortly after 8 a. m. while injured from the first blast were being brought out.

The first blast about 6 a. m. caused heavy roof falls.

PAY $250,000

Ohio Fishermen Double State Income From Licenses.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Revenue to the state from the sale of fishing licenses more than doubled during the last year because of Ohio's universal anglers' license law, the division of conservation reported today.

The law, which became effective last May 31, requires every fisherman to obtain a license.

Nearly 500,000 of the permits were sold during the year at 60 cents each, of which 10 cents went to the issuing agent and 50 cents or a total of approximately $250,000 to the conservation division.

Baby Born As Police Cruiser Rushes Mother to Hospital.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Old man stork chalked up another victory today in his perpetual contest with speeding police cruisers.

This time a baby boy was born to Mrs. Cleo Mueller, 29, Portland, Ore., as she was being rushed to Grant hospital in a patrol car. She was being brought from Buckeye Lake by friends and was transferred to a cruiser near the city limits.

U. S. Court Reverses NLRB Second Time In Two Days

Follows Ford Ruling With Decision Favoring Ohio Firm; Order to Enforce Instructions Denied.

(By Associated Press)

COVINGTON—For a second time in two days, the National Labor Relations Board suffered reversal in the U. S. circuit court of appeals today in denial by the tribunal of an order against the Thompson Products company, auto accessory firm of Cleveland, O.

Yesterday, the court amended a previous order, and thus blocked efforts of the NLRB to withdraw the record of its case against the Ford Motor company, in which it charged violations of the Wagner labor act.

Enforcement Order Denied.

In the first opinion he has handed down since becoming a member of the court, Judge Elwood Hamilton of Louisville denied the board an enforcement order in the Thompson case and criticized it for the manner in which it presented its "findings of fact." He wrote that they were "not sustained by substantial evidence," and added:

"The board's finding in this case tends to destroy the purpose of the labor relations act and to promote discord among employers and employes, instead of harmonious and joint discussion of their difficulties."

The board issued the order against the Thompson company on Aug. 16, 1937, directing reinstatement of three employes and cessation of the firm's reputed opposition to the United Automobile Workers of America, a CIO affiliate.

Its order against Ford, issued Dec. 22, 1937, followed similar lines, and sought to require restoration of jobs for 29 workers in Michigan plans. Yesterday, however, the court ruled that the record should be made a part of the company's suit to set aside the decision.

5 FOUND GUILTY

Toledo Company Officials Convicted in Fraud Case.

TOLEDO—(AP)—Five officials of the Toledo Guaranty corporation were found guilty today of charges of fraud and issuing fradulent checks by a jury of eight women and four men in Judge John M. McCabe's common pleas court. The jury received the case yesterday at 12:35 p. m.

Those found guilty are:

William R. Parmele, president, Arlington, Va.; William O. Reid, vice president; John L. Rossel, vice president; Edward Schwab, treasurer, and George Brennan, salesman, Detroit, Mich.

The jurors found the five defendants guilty of four counts in the fraud indictment and six in the check indictment. They had taken into the jury room with them 132 forms of verdict.

BLAMES GAS IN MINE EXPLOSION

Bureau Says Deaths Of 8 Caused By Fumes In Shaft.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The explosion in the St. Clair anthracite mine near Pottsville, Pa., in which eight persons were killed and many injured, was caused by gas that had seeped in from abandoned sections of the mine, the bureau of mines reported to Secretary of the Interior Ickes today.

The gas, the bureau said, was ignited by a carbide light worn by a miner.

A shift of men, who had just entered the mines, were trapped by collapse of the floor of the gangway.

SECOND TO DIE

Wife Follows Husband In Crash Death; 5 Brothers Held.

CIRCLEVILLE — (AP) — Mrs. Lennie Crawford, 60, died early today, second victim of a head-on automobile collision eight miles west of here. Her husband, 63, was killed late yesterday. Eight other persons were injured.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said the second car was occupied by five brothers, Alonzo, Wesley, Denver, Norman and Beeman Leasure, all of whom were held.

NORWALK BANK LICENSED

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The federal reserve bank announced today the Huron County Banking company of Norwalk had been licensed as a member of the federal reserve system effective yesterday.

COLD TO STAY

Sun's Bright But Humboldt's Theory Holds Up.

The sun was doing its best today, but the Humboldt theory that May always produces some cold days still held the upper hand.

The mercury stood at 57 at noon, which was seven degrees better than at the same time yesterday. Last night's low was 43, and the average was 46, 17 degrees below normal.

The forecast said tonight and Wednesday would be fair, but predicted that the cool weather would remain.

Rainfall in the past 24 hours amounted to two hundredths of an inch, according to Observer Otto Sprunger.

PLAN AIR ROUTE

British Would Start Service Across Pacific Ocean.

LONDON—(AP)—The British government announced in the house of commons today it was considering establishment of an air service across the Pacific ocean from Canada to New Zealand.

Negotiations already are under way with the dominions, and also with the United States over ownership of certain Pacific islands along the proposed route.

Measles Outbreak Boosts Contagion Cases 40 Per Cent

Contagious diseases in Mansfield during April showed an increase of nearly 40 per cent over the previous month, the monthly report of Dr. Roy C. Rehder, health commissioner, showed today.

During April 597 cases of communicable diseases were reported, as compared with 381 cases in March.

The largest increase was shown in measles, of which 538 cases were reported last month, nearly twice the number in March, when 317 cases were reported.

The report also revealed 32 cases of chickenpox in the city, last month as compared with 21 for the month previous. A slight decrease was shown in scarlet fever with eight cases recorded in April as against 21 in March. There were also 11 cases of mumps and seven cases of pneumonia.

Births in Mansfield last month also showed an increase while the death rate dropped.

During April 70 births were recorded in the city as compared with 66 for March. Deaths, however, fell from 43 in March to 32 last month.

2 STUDENTS DIE

Killed When Auto Runs Into Rear of Stalled Truck.

MORRISONVILLE, Ill.—(INS)—Two St. Louis university medical students returning from a Mother's day celebration at Taylorsville were killed early today when their automobile crashed into a stalled truck on a highway three miles south of here.

They were Lawrence Tex, 25, Taylorsville, and Dan Fox, 24, Kenton, O.

Council As Whole To Study Gas Rate Question Tonight

The gas rate question will be laid before council as a whole for the first time tonight, when the utilities committee of council submits for study, its own rate proprosal and counter-offer of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, which calls for an increase in existing rates.

Tonight's meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p. m. in the council chamber, has been arranged by Russell D. Porch, chairman of the utilities committee and will be an informal session, he said. The chief purpose will be to learn the attitude of other councilmen toward the committee's plan, which would reduce the gas bill of each Mansfield consumer 25 cents a month. Eight of the nine councilmen reached by The News-Journal last week, expressed opposition to any increase. The ninth was out of the city.

Porch said he would also outline to council the rates paid in other Ohio cities. Mansfield's present rate is one of the lowest in the state.

The company's proposal, made to the committee through William C. Mead, Mansfield division manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, would increase the bill of the 5,000-foot consumer 45 cents a month.

In submitting the proposal, the gas company asserted it was losing money on the present rate. The current contract expires May 15, but will remain in effect until city and company agree on a contract to replace it.

Pity, Love Akin, Girl May Be Wrong

By VIRGINIA LEE

Pity is akin to love, but if it is based on nothing more than being sorry for a person, it won't last. So don't marry, you young folk, because you feel sorry for someone. Your feeling may change to hate instead of to the tenderer passion.

A young girl writes me that she loves a boy who has a disfigured face and is deaf in one ear. Her people don't want her even to see him, have forbidden him the house, because they feel a man so handicapped will never be able to support a family. But she insists she loves and wants to marry him. She also feels sorry for him, but as relatives point out, they cannot live on pity.

The young man is working and earning a fair amount for a boy of his age, 20, but whether he will be able to earn enough through life to support a family remains to be seen. And whether the girl is mistaking pity and admuration for the brave fight this chap so handicapped is making, instead of some warmer feeling is also problematical. She is 17.

At any rate, I feel the girls parents should not be cruel to the young man. They should insist that he prove that he can support a wife, and make both young people promise not to marry for some years, as both are so young. But I cannot understand how they can forbid him the girls friendship when he so patently needs all the encouragement he can get. As a matter of fact, if they sympathize with and help the boy as much as they can, the other problem may solve itself. By treating him so unkindly they make the girl feel he is a martyr—in fact, they give both young folk persecution complexes—and make them more determined to wed. If they treat the matter more lightly, it may be that when they are old enough to marry they will have gotten over their infatuation for each other.

R. O.: I can see the reason for your boy friend's mother's objection to your friendship with him, and she is using the letter you wrote him as an excuse to keep you apart. I think, under the circumstances, you had better do as she thinks best, because it is not very easy for two of such different religious faiths to be happy married.

TROUBLED TWINS are girls of 16 and 18. A, the 18-year-old one, went with a boy for four years and then they stopped seeing each other because he wanted to go with boys. They see each other every day and twice a week she invites him to her home. He comes, but he goes out with other girls. She has another boy friend whom she likes and who likes her.

As long as the first boy makes no effort to date you, A, and you make all the advances, why not drop him and devote yourself to the boy who does like you? It would be more sensible.

B, 16, "hopelessly loves" a boy who does not live in her town. She doesn't know his address, but if she found it out should she write to him? She also has another boy friend, whom she admires.

No, don't write to this boy with whom you are "hopelessly in love." He doesn't seem interested. Devote yourself to the boy who likes you and whom you admire.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIVE-SUIT BRIDGE

IF YOU ARE about to tackle the new game for the first time, be forewarned that you will find it cumbersome to deal the larger deck, go through the longer bidding which frequently develops, hold 16 cards if your fingers are short, and spend the extra time for 16 tricks instead of 13. But also be prepared for some delightful problems in deciding where to place the face-up last card dealt, known as the widow. After the opening lead, you may put it in either hand or dummy, discarding whatever card you wish.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable. Widow card: Heart 4.)

After South reached 5-Spades on this deal by normal bidding, West led the club K. The widow card in this case is valueless of itself, but its displacement value is great. By putting it in the dummy and discarding the club 2, South makes his contract certain, as even with a bad break he can lose only one trick in clubs, one in diamonds and one in hearts.

In Five-Suit, there are 16 tricks to a deal. Book is eight tricks, and odd-tricks scored below the line are all tricks beyond the first eight you take. Thus one-odd means nine tricks, three-odd means 11, and so on.

Game is 120 points below the line. From a scoreless position, this requires six-odd in clubs or diamonds, which count 20 a trick: five-odd in hearts or spades, which count 25; four-odd in the new suit, "Eagles," which count 30, or three-odd in no trumps, counting 40 a trick. Six bid and made is called a Small Slam with a bonus of 500 not vulnerable, 750 vulnerable. Seven bid and made is called a Grand Slam, paying 1,000 not vulnerable, 1,500 vulnerable. Eight bid and made, or all the tricks, is called a Super Slam, paying 1,500 not vulnerable and 2,000 vulnerable. Holding five aces in one hand counts 300 honors. Otherwise all the scoring is as in regular contract bridge, also the usual rules.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 11.

A DAY of great enterprise and probable excitement and commotion is read from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. While much of this liveliness may concern new undertakings or the launching of important projects, yet the intimate affairs are also under high stimuli for adventure, possibly romance. While these are happy and of surprising pleasantness, at the same time there may be financial problems, with an estate, investments or property involved. Do not subject these to peril or the machinations of deceitful associates.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for particularly lively and strenuous developments, with new projects and opportunities suddenly arising both in the business and private lives. There may be adventure, romance or a surprise of a pleasant or propitious nature. But be cautious in financial affairs and do not subject property, investments or inheritance to jeopardy, exercising care with partners. Romantic adventure looms large.

A child born on this day may be talented and creative in its ideas but may lack the confidence and enterprise necessary to put over its large plans. It may be too prudent, cautious and timid for its own good. It should be lifted out of such moodiness.

Mashed ripe bananas, sweetened to taste, added to whipped cream, makes a good coating for white cake. This can be served as a dessert and is tasty when accompanied by coffee.

Make-Up Does Much For Modern Miss

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

"Mirror, mirror on the wall,
Who is fairest of them all?"

This is the question you will be asking your mirror. The trend toward lighter makeup that started last winter is still very much the thing. So if you are blessed with a fair skin, then you have nothing to worry about. The girls with milk-white skins will be able to use pale powders and cool, subtle rouge.

This doesn't mean that it will be chic for you to go back to the white powder and magenta rouge mode. Women used this type of makeup years ago because the various subtle shades had not been developed then. Now with the scores of blends and hues and with the skill which has been developed by women in applying cosmetics, lovely effects can be achieved.

Pink and white blondes like Miriam Hopkins and Carole Lombard will no longer try to hide their natural coloring. So if you are this type, with blonde hair and blue eyes, you can bring out all the beauty of your type by using a pale flesh powder and a bluish-pink rouge lipstick and nail polish. Your mascara should be either blue or blue-green and so should your eye shadow. You fortunately can wear a variety of colors; dark green, gray, bottle green, russet brown, blue, black, gray violet, turquoise blue and pale yellow. But beware of light green, red, pink, rose fuchsia and orange. These colors do not show you at your best.

For Pearly Skins.

Those of you who have pearly colorless skins or pale, creamy complexions, wth blonde hair and blue eyes, should use light rachel powder, rose rouge, lipstick and nail polish and blue green or blue mascara and eye shadow. Your colors are: dark purple, blue, medium green, chestnut, tobacco brown, pale turquoise blue, powder blue, pale rose with considerable gray in it, orchid, emerald green, dull grayish red, creamy white, jade green, pale greenish yellow, lavender and violet. Avoid: red, orange, bright yellow and brilliant blue.

If you are an ash blonde your color chart is: powder a little darker than your skin tone but with an apricot cast, tulip red rouge, lipstick and nail polish, and blue or blue-green mascara and eye shadow.

PRUNE PUDDING — Three-fourths pound prunes, one-half cup sugar, whites four eggs. Wash and pick over prunes. Put prunes in sauce pan, cover with cold water and soak two hours. Cook in same water until soft, when water should be nearly evaporated. Remove stones and cut prunes into small pieces, sprinkle with sugar. Beat whites of eggs stiff and add prunes gradually. Pour into a slightly buttered pudding dish and bake in moderate oven for 25 minutes. Chill and serve with custard or whipped cream.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I smiled at Mary with affectionate indulgence as she asked me what I thought of her plan.

"Taken into consideration, approved and filed," I told her. And, indeed, her decision to surprise her father-in-law with a dance as well as a perfected role strongly appealed to me. I had been so absorbed in my plans for undoing Philip Veritzen's diabolical spoiling of her rendition of the role that I had not thought of the interpolated dance I had planned for it, and upon which Mr. Veritzen had ostensibly reserved judgment.

But now that I took time to consider it, I realized that he already had passed judgment, and that he would not permit Mary to give the dance, even in that first rehearsal, when, I felt sure, he meant to dismiss her from the cast as inadequate. He knew very well her superb skill in dancing, and he would not allow anything to salvage any credit for her.

Artistic Conscience.

But I also knew his artistic conscience, so many miles removed from the one which he employed in the rest of his life. If Mary gave a really unusual performance, one that would command attention and approval from the critics, and added to it the dance which I knew would be breath-taking, he could no more deny her the chance to go on in the role than he could give a mediocre production to the public. And this would not be because he would have a single qualm about withholding the role from her—his devilish plot to spoil her rendition proved that—but because it was not in him to deprive his highly-critical but devoted public of a really good piece of work.

It was on that I had counted upon saving Mary's role for her, and it was that which gave extra cordiality to my approval of her plan to perfect her dance.

"And now that everything is settled," Miss Whitlock said with brisk authority, "how about my shipping this girl off to bed right away?"

Mary's face registered two wishes, one of her fatigued body for rest, the other of her indomitable spirit which found an outlet in words.

"But Auntie Madge said she would drill me some more before she left," she said.

"Will you take my professional opinion," Miss Whitlock interposed quietly, "that any drilling done in your present state of fatigue will be utterly wasted, while if you rest—and dance—while your aunt is gone, you will be able to crowd even more work in than you have been doing?"

Mary gave her a long, measured look, then put out her hands in a pretty little gesture of capitulation.

"Okay," she said. "I'm going by-by, but not till I talk to my auntie a bit. Do you mind?"

"Not a bit," Miss Whitlock promptly assented, and as promptly withdrew to her own room, closing the door behind her.

Tell Dicky Of Kids?

But when she was gone, Mary appeared oddly hesitant about beginning whatever she had wished to say to me. At last, however, she put a blunt question.

"Auntie Madge are you going to tell Uncle Dicky about the kids coming home?"

There was that in her voice which made me realize the question was not asked idly, and I found myself unaccountably delaying my reply.

"Why! of course, Mary," I said at last. "He will want to come home and see the children. He would be terribly offended if I did not tell him."

"Do you want him to drive out with you?" she asked next.

It was a question I could not answer off hand. I waited a second, the memory of the drunken woman stabbing me, before I spoke.

"I don't think I could wait for him," I said evasively. "He always has so many things on hand that he never can start at a minute's notice. He usually requires several hours' notice, and I must not delay getting out there."

"Then," said Mary, elaborately casual, "why not leave it to me to let him know about the kids coming home? I can telephone him just as well as you can, and you won't be delayed."

What to Wear In Don't Dress Community

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I have recently married and moved from a big city to a smaller community. Where I lived it was customary to dress for dinner, only if both men and women dressed. By this, I mean tuxedo and long but simple evening dresses. In this new place, the women wear long and often very elaborate dresses, while the men wear business suits. I truly feel silly starting out this way with my husband in business clothes. I have several very lovely shorter afternoon dresses in my trousseau and think these are much more suitable. But there is the likelihood that if I wear them the other people might think I don't know what is proper, or what would be even more ruinous to our happiness here, they might think I don't consider their dinners of any importance. What do you suggest that I do under these special circumstances? But in addition to answering my very personal question, will you write to the men of the country—and apparently there are a good many of them—who seem to feel that putting on dinner clothes is something of an ordeal. It seems to my husband and me that after the office a good shower and a complete change in dress does a good deal to put the business cares aside until tomorrow. I hope you agree.

Answer: Of course I agree thoroughly. In fact, the conspicuously unsuitable combination of a woman in evening dress and a man in his day clothes is an argument, on the part of foreigners who think us uncouth, which gives us no answer for the defense. If some modern men refuse to dress, then in the communities where this occurs the special picture steps down. To put it very brutally, it emphasizes the men's lack of courtesy to the women. On the other hand, if both the men and women wear day clothes, well then, they don't care to dress. But to answer your question, I would wear daytime clothes, as pretty and attractive as possible, which would be suitable to go with my husband's street clothes. Any type of dress that you could wear in the daytime with a hat, but not the type of dress that could suitably be worn only at an evening party. The skirt could be long, sleeves of short length if you are young and your arms are pretty. On no account a sleeveless armhole, and on no account a low neck.

THEATER

WHILE fires of irritation and humiliation are still glowing in fair, feminine breasts in Hollywood, over the accusation that their owners are "deadwood" to exhibitors, the movie makers might well take stock of themselves. In the first place the biggest star is no bigger than the story he or she has to work with, and two or three poor stories in a row can ruin the greatest star The story of course is not the star's fault, and most of them are constantly fighting for better stories—Bette Davis and Jimmy Cagney for instance. And in the second place the metropolitan areas, in which the big stars draw biggest, do not represent the greatest box office intake, which is in "the sticks". And out in the so-called "sticks," it's the Hopalong Cassidy pictures, the westerns and the family stories that draw best.

Raymond In New Role.

Gene Raymond leaves romantic comedy behind for a new type of role in "Stolen Heaven," opening at the Madison tomorrow With him is Olympe (O-lamp) Bradna, French actress who reaches American movie stardom in this picture. She was seen, you will recall, as the ill-fated sweetheart of George Raft in "Souls At Sea" and later with Raymond and Ann Sothern in "Everybody's Girl." Her producers, Paramount, have a lot of faith in her talent and personality. She and Raymond are seen as entertainers in a continental beer garden, which hides their real identities as jewel thieves. An interesting cast supports them, which is made up of Glenda Farrell, Lewis Stone, Porter Hall and Douglas Dumbrille.

An O. Henry Story.

To the archives of American short story writers the producers went for Bing Crosby's latest picture "Doctor Rhythm," current at the Ohio. They found what they wanted in O. Henry's old story "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon." But whether it is suitable for a Crosby vehicle is debatable and a lot of his loyal followers are of the opinion that it isn't quite up to the Crosby standard of screen entertainment, while Beatrice Lillie, perennial musical comedy favorite, gives the crooner a run for first honors. Mary Carlisle, as socialite Lillie's Niece provides a reason for romance.

Carminati Re-Appears.

A lot of people who have never forgotten the best of all the Grace Moore pictures, "One Night of Love," frequently wonder what has happened to Tullio Carminati, who played the voice maestro who fell in love with his lovely pupil. He is playing for Gaumont-British in England and one of his recent pictures is "Look Out For Love," in which he is a cultural diplomat who falls in love with street singer, Anna Neagle. Carminati is one of the most romantic of continental screen players, although mature in age. The picture is being presented at the Majestic, along with "Captains Courageous," starring Spencer Tracy (he won the Academy award for his work in it) Freddie Bartholomew, Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas.

A spectacular musical comedy and a problem drama are offered on the Ritz program for Wednesday and Thursday. The musical film is Eddie Cantor's "Roman Scandals," in which the banjo-eyed little comedian is supported by Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, David Manners and the Goldwyn Girls. The drama is Joan Crawford's "The Bride Wore Red," with Franchot Tone and Robert Young as the two swains who offer love to a poor waterfront cabaret entertainer. It's the well known story of love or riches, with marriage on the former, and something less serious on the latter Young is seen as a young nobleman and Tone as the village postman.

ZOO'S GORILLA SEIZES WOMAN

Reaches Through Bars Of Cage, Wound's Trainer's Wife.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Susie Cincinnati zoo gorilla, reached through the bars of her cage to wound the wife of her trainer William Dressman while a weekend crowd of zoo fans looked on.

Mrs. Dressman, 34, was at home today with a 4½-inch head wound which required 12 stitches, as well as cuts on her right arm.

Dressman was inside the cage with his 275-pound charge. The animal reached out into the crowd to pull Mrs. Dressman against the cage. Dressman seized the gorilla's throat with both hands to rescue his wife.

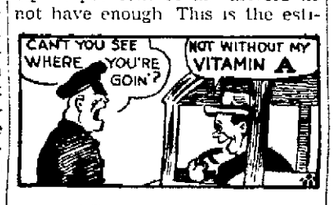
NEW YORK—(AP)—Good brakes and an eyeful of vitamin A—these are two needs for safe night driving

Good brakes can be bought.

But it's not so easy to get the vitamin A in the eye That vitamin is the stuff that prevents night blindness, or inability to see in very dim light

The highway trouble is not caused by the person really blind in poor light. It is the rest of us who have varying degrees of too little vitamin A in the eye. Probably 34 per cent of the drivers do not have enough This is the estimate of Dr. Julius F. Neumueller, director of the bureau of visual science, American Optical company.



This difference in drivers' eyes has been found recently because the eyes are a good test for sick people The test is how long it takes to see a just-visible light in complete darkness, after a bright light has been switched off.

In this test the number of vitamin A-deficient persons was found to be unexpectedly widespread. Dr. Neumueller said it affected 67 per cent of hospital patients in the walking around stage of recovery.

The trouble, from the driver's point of view, is that it is no use to administer vitamin A with an eyedropper The vitamin has to come with food

FARM PLAN HIT BY VANDENBERG

Says Expenditures Increase Six-Fold But Benefits to Farmer Fall Short.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) has charged in the senate that government farm expenditures had been increased six-fold in the last decade without appreciable improvement in the financial condition of farmers.

Discussing the pending $1,099,000,000 agriculture department appropriation bill, Vandenberg cited figures showing departmental expenditures never had exceeded $177,000,000 a year up to 1930. As against this, he said, treasury figures showed the department spent $1,264,000,000 in 1937.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), floor manager for the bill, estimated the senate committee had increased prospective expenditures $48,000,000 above the house approved total. This would bring the 1939 fiscal year expenditures $68,000,000 above those in prospect for 1938 and would exceed the budget estimate by $38,000,000 he said.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.)) blocked final action on the bill today, serving notice that he had several amendments he wished to present before a vote is taken, probably late tomorrow.

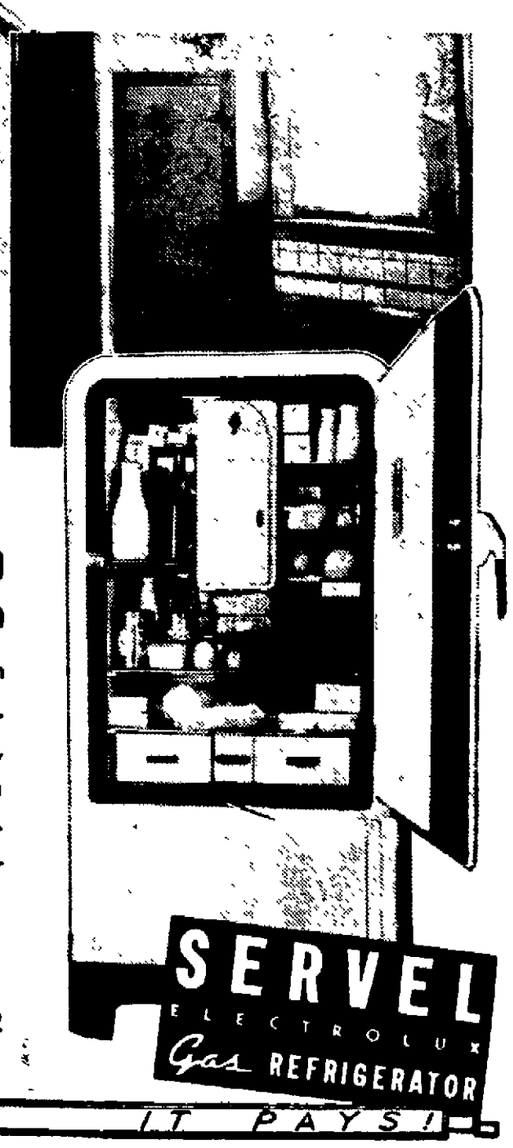
GAS REFRIGERATOR LIVES UP TO ALL CLAIMS MADE FOR IT YEARS AGO

Here's Positive Proof That Gas Refrigeration Remains Silent And Efficient For Years

Mrs. D. G. Wiseman, 39 W. North Broadway, Columbus, Ohio, years ago installed one of the early Electrolux gas refrigerator models. Says Mrs. Wiseman today, "My gas refrigerator is as silent and operates as efficiently as the day it was first installed in my kitchen. I wouldn't exchange it for any other type of refrigerator. It has proven its lasting satisfaction and economy. In all these years, we have never spent one cent in repairs on the freezing unit. I know there are still years and years of service in my Servel Electrolux."

Above is reproduced one of the first Gas Company advertisements on Electrolux gas refrigerators to appear in local newspapers. Says its copy in part, "There is absolutely no noise, as the Gas Refrigerator has no moving parts . . . to get out of adjustment. A small gas flame . . . and an ordinary freezing liquid do the work . . . extremely low cost operation." These claims, made years ago, are sustained today by hundreds of satisfied customers who have owned gas refrigerators for ten years or more.

Pictured at the right is a corner of Mrs. Wiseman's kitchen, showing the Electrolux gas refrigerator installed many years ago, as it appears today in its original colored finish. Still attractive in appearance as well as efficient in operation, it enhances the beauty of this well-kept kitchen.



Let Gas Refrigeration Bring Lasting Economy To Your Kitchen

Today, Servel Electrolux gas refrigerators are even more efficient in operation than were the earlier models. Yet, their cost is considerably less. Why not this silent, lasting method of refrigeration for your home? You can install a Servel Electrolux now, and pay for it in a surprisingly short time out of the savings it will make for you. HOME FINANCING IN SMALL TOWNS HELPED BY FHA

Mortgage Funds Available at Low Interest Rates for Low Population Areas.

A recent report, showing percentages of mortgages accepted for insurance by the Federal Housing administration according to city-size groupings, indicates that ample mortgage funds at reasonable rates are now available for home financing in the smaller communities of the country.

For several years prior to the enactment of Title II of the National Housing act and the establishment of the Insured Mortgage system all residential construction in many small cities and towns was virtually at a standstill. Not only was money scarce but when it could be obtained the rate of interest was very high in some areas. Efforts on the part of lending institutions to correct conditions were ineffectual under the old mortgage systems.

Approximately one-third of the entire business transacted under Title II of the national housing act during 1937 represented mortgages on dwellings located in cities having 10,000 or less population. More than one-sixth of these mortgages were secured by properties in towns having 2,500 population or less.

Federal Housing administration officials, commenting on the report, said that in making mortgage funds available to smaller communities, as well as large cities, the FHA is carrying out one of the major objectives of the National Housing Act.

In addition to stimulating lending at interest rates well below those that formerly prevailed in many areas, the insured mortgage system has made it widely possible for borrowers to amortize mortgage loans over a term of years of as long as 25 years on certain properties. With the long-term and monthly amortization features effective, the necessity for mortgage renewals with attendant fees has been virtually eliminated.

Leaky Roof Can Be Preserved for Many More Years

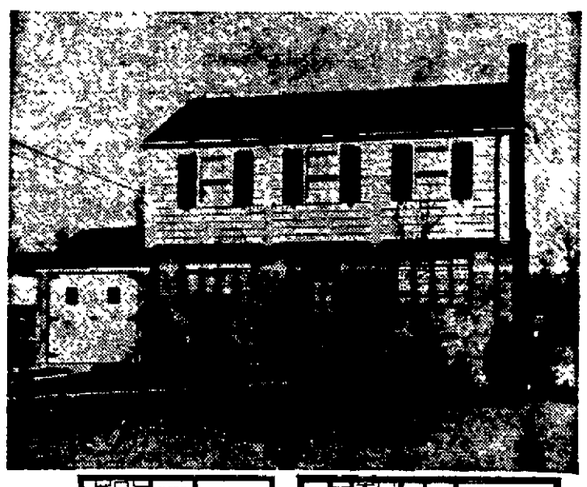
A roof that leaks all over can be given a coating of heavy asphalt and asbestos compound, which will fill up cracks and nail holes and preserve the roof for several years. However, before this coating is applied all curled and broken shingles should be replaced or repaired.

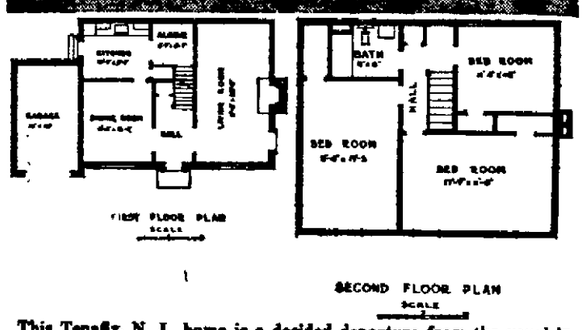
If the leak is centered, it can be located by looking at the underside during a rainstorm. It is very likely to be at the junction of two surfaces—a valley or the joint between a chimney and the roof, or where a dormer is cut through. In this case, the fault is probably in the flashing, but if it is in the middle of a large roof area, it is likely to be from a curled or loosened shingle.

FOR MEDIUM-SIZED HOUSE

An exterior color scheme for a medium-sized house has a pale yellow body and trim color, shutters of maroon, porch floor and steps dark slate color. The roof is gray and the chimney is painted body color with maroon band at the top.

Made of Granite and Brick





This Tenafly, N. J., home is a decided departure from the usual in both the design and materials. The two and one-half story dwelling was built of granite and brick with frame exterior employed for top-floor.

The property is valued under Federal Housing Administration appraisal at $7,800 and is financed by an insured mortgage of $4,500. The monthly repayment installments, which are extended over a period of 20 years, total $29.70. This includes payment on principal, interest, taxes, and other fixed charges.

INSULATE SIDEWALLS, WINDOWS FOR ECONOMY WRITER ASSERTS

Of first importance to every home-builder and home-owner is the following excerpt taken from an article on Insulation, by Tyler Stewart Rogers, which apeared in the "House and Garden."

Rogers, a member of the Research committee on Insulation of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating engineers, has based his article on scientific data.

"There is much misinformation currently in circulation about the best use of insulation. The idea that it is sufficient to insulate roofs or attics alone is an outgrowth of the fact that it is most economical to work in these accessible areas and therefore you get the greatest return for your investment by doing the cheapest part of the job." he said.

"Acting in summer, about two-thirds of the heat entering a house comes in through the roof. But in winter only about one-third of the heat escapes through the attic or roof, another third goes out through the side walls and the last third through the glass of windows and doors and by air leakage around these various openings.

"That is why more attention ought to be paid to insulating side walls and to weatherstripping, winter windows, and awnings. All pay dividends in cash and comfort and are an important part of every insulating job.

"Weatherstripping not only can stop around 90 per cent of the air leakage if best quality types are used, but it also stops dust and drafts and thus directly increases comfort. The automatic control of heating and air conditioning discussed in another article in this issue is taxed far less if stray drafts and unwanted air leakage can be prevented. Weatherstripping aids summer air conditioning as well as winter," he said.

One-half the world wonders why the other half lives.

BRICK POINTING

If a brick wall develops leaks it may often be checked by pointing the joints. These are the vulnerable points. If they are made tight the leaks should cease.

DECORATE NOW

FHA Helps Provide Funds for Doing Over Homes.

Today's trend toward color gives the housewife a chance to express her individuality, but care is required if clashes and confusion are to be avoided.

Advice is wise, and capable professional decorators carefully preserve the housewife's ideas, feeling that no home owner needs feel ill at ease in her own home.

Funds for the redecorating of a house may be obtained from any private financial institution operating under the property improvement credit plan of the Federal Housing administration.

FOR LIVING ROOM

Emphasizing the extreme note in decoration, is a living room with walls and woodwork painted pale powder blue. Canary colored drapes frame the windows and contrast with the dark brown rug. A soft, medium blue material upholsters the sofa, one chair combines the tones of the sofa and rug in its figured material and another chair is covered with canary color leather.

BACKGROUND FOR MAPLE

A living room planned as a background for early American furniture of honey-toned maple is filled with interesting detail. Pewter gray woodwork sets off the white of walls and ceiling.

POINTERS ON BUYING A HOME...
... Insist on the use of good lumber. For the life of a building depends on the quality of materials used. The initial savings represented by the use of cheap materials are far more offset by later expensive repair bills and replacement costs.
- Lumber homes endure for generations.
- Wood finish is friendly and warm.
- Be lumber wise—not penny foolish.
- Quality Lumber is a lifetime material. ...
- 14⅞ inches of wood has more insulating value than 10 feet of solid concrete.
- The "termite scare" may be forgotten by an expenditure of less than $10 when your house is being built.
- Full cellars are necessary to real comfort in this climate.
- The majority of fires start on the inside of a home.
- A frame house can be readily repaired after a fire, and alterations and additions may be made at a reasonable cost.

MAXIE WON'T RETIRE WITH TITLE IF HE BEATS LOUIS.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK — (INS) — Gazing blandly upon his questioner with that mingled touch of condescension and innocence that somehow always seems too guileless to be real, Max Schmeling announced today, in practically so many words, that if he wins the world's heavyweight championship from Joe Louis June 22, he won't retire with the title to Germany — because he can't And he broadly inferred that, anybody who says he will, must have a frayed cuff lying around loose in their family closet.

We must have money—big money—he says It costs him $100,000 a year to live.

"And how you get that, retiring?" he wound up triumphantly In his quaint English, he was trying to express the idea that the title is a very fine honor and he wants it more than any other thing that life can give. But maybe he's a little narrow-minded, because he also wants to eat

"I haf three homes in Germany; I see one now—I hope," he added, simply. "But still I must—how you say it?—Ja, I must haf the nest egg before I think of retiring. So, I fight Louis for the title in June; then I defend it here against Max Baer, oder the best opponent, here in September. After that, I make other fights, too"

But—you point out—perhaps all this will be taken out of his hands Perhaps the Nazi government will, as reported, nominate him to keep the title in perpetuity—if he gets it—so that he will be the perfect symbol of Nordic supremacy as the head of the German youth movement.

"That is—how you say?—'noose' to me," was the reply. "I hear nothing of that in Germany I only hear it in America. I can only say I haf a contract, first, to box Louis, and again, to box again for the title in September."

For obvious reasons, he was adroitly dodging the money question but just as obviously this was in his mind that he will get the short end of a million dollars against Louis; whereas, if he wins, he'll get the long end of possibly two million dollars against Baer. He hasn't the least doubt that he can and will beat both, although Baer knocked him out five years ago.

However, Louis knocked out Baer—and Schmeling knocked out Louis—and besides, he never did "believe" that Baer business But what was this the reporters managed to make him say on the ship about demanding a "rubber" match with Louis in September, if the latter wins the June fight? Did that mean that he thought Louis might win the June fight, after all? He smiled, faintly

"They keep after me, those writers," said he, apparently a little puzzled about this "Suppose you lose suppose you lose, they keep saying So I say what they seem to want me to say I say I fight him again in September. But I win in June, be sure of that

"Louis iss joost the same fighter. I saw him fight Farr and I saw the pictures of the Braddock fight He learns noddings You see."

Doesn't Think Bear Can Repeat Knockout.

DIDN'T he think Baer might repeat his 1933 knockout? No he didn't even think Baer could have repeated the following evening And now—

"Und now," he finished "He's five years older und not so good as then But he draw big Also I always want to—yess—wipe out the defeat I do it in September"

He nodded as though comfortably considering an assured fact so that in looking back now, I'm certain of one thing they may beat him out of his wits but they'll never scare him out of them

Cleveland Trails Surprise Senators After Leonard Wins Another Game.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The sharpshooters and railbirds today were ready to admit they overlooked the best long shot in the major leagues in not giving the Washington Senators a tumble in the spring forecast.

Most observers consigned the Senators to the second division. They went to the post at 30-1 to win, 10-1 to place and 4-1 to show, with only the Browns and Athletics at longer odds.

Half Game Ahead.

Today finds Washington leading the American league parade, a half game ahead of Cleveland and the New York Yankees.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, only team to hold an edge over the Senators, rates Washington as a much improved outfit and says they may make trouble in the pennant race.

The three big changes in Washington's array are Pitcher Emil Leonard, the Brooklyn castoff with the mysterious knuckle ball, George Washington Case, the fleet-footed outfielder, and Zeke Bonura, whose irrepressible spirit and big bat have made a tremendous difference.

Leonard scored his third triumph yesterday when he held the St. Louis Browns to seven scattered hits as the Senators won, 7-1. It was Washington's sixth straight victory.

The Boston Red Sox knocked Cleveland off its high perch by plastering the Indians with a 15-3 defeat. Rookie Jim Bagby held the Indians to six hits.

The Boston Bees scored a 10-inning triumph over Pittsburgh, 7-5, on Pinch-hitter Deb Garms' single with the bases loaded. Then Milburn Shoffner fanned Pinch-hitter Wilbur Brubaker with the bases loaded in the Pirates' half to end the game.

Slugs Phillies.

With a revised batting order Cincinnati slugged out a 9-4 victory over the Phillies.

Joe Medwick's triple, his fourth hit of the day, drove in two runs in the eighth and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 9-7 triumph over Brooklyn.

Denominational Conference May Be Organized in Ohio

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Plans are being kept under cover, and the "steering committee" won't talk for publication, but it's practically cut and dried that by the time today's sophomores become seniors a denominational athletic conference will be an actuality in Ohio college circles

Drawing its church-affiliated members from both the Ohio and the Buckeye leagues, the proposed circuit hopes to solve many problems now facing athletic departments of the various schools.

Mentioned as possible members of the league are Ohio Wesleyan university of the Buckeye conference, Wooster, Muskingum, Denison, Capital, Wittenberg, Otterbein, Heidelberg, Marietta, Baldwin-Wallace and a few other Ohio conference members.

Golf 'Hazard' To Be Removed

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United States Golf association announced today it had put an end to the favorite alibi of golfers who miss putts "because of brown patches on the greens."

Working with the department of agriculture, the association has developed a fungicide that not only controls the disease causing brown patches but dyes the grass any desired shade of green. Although developed especially for golf greens, the fungicide has been used with equally good results on lawns, football gridirons and baseball diamonds. It destroys the disease causing brown patches and does not harm the grass.

Vitt Faces First Crisis As Manager of Cleveland

His Job Now Is to Keep Faltering Indians From Folding Up Completely.

BOSTON, Mass. — (U.P.) — Oscar Vitt today faced his first crisis as manager of the Cleveland Indians.

With the Indians off to a good start in the American league race, the new pilot of the Tribe experienced little difficulty in injecting "hustle" into his players. However, Cleveland today had skidded out of first place and it is Vitt's difficult task to keep the Indians playing "heads up" ball instead of folding.

Again a Jinx.

The east, long a graveyard of Cleveland pennant chances, has again proved a jinx for the team. When the Tribe was trounced 15 to 3 by the Boston Red Sox here yesterday, it was the club's fourth setback in seven games of the present road trip.

Vitt brought some of the trouble upon his own head when he began toying with an established pitching staff and switched from one starting hurler to another instead of constantly rotating a "big four."

In his experimental work yesterday, Vitt gave Denny Galehouse his first starting opportunity of the season, and the big right hander was knocked out of the box after he had retired only one man. Then followed Bill Zuber and Al Milnar, neither of whom worked with success.

Boston clinched the game by scoring four times in the first inning and then fattened individual batting averages by counting once in the fourth, again in the fifth, six times in the sixth and three times in the seventh.

The Red Sox garnered 11 hits off the three Cleveland hurlers and also took full advantage of the 12 bases on balls the Indian pitchers gave up.

Jim Bagby, jr., son of a one-time Cleveland pitching great, was in the box for the Red Sox and allowed only six hits. He granted the Indians one run in the seventh and two in the eighth.

Benches Lary.

In an effort to pull the Indians out of the doldrums, Manager Vitt announced he was benching Lyn Lary and sending the rookie Jimmy Webb to shortstop.

The clubs were to meet here again today with Mel Harder and Johnny Marcum as the opposing hurlers.

CAPTAINS MEET FRIDAY

A meeting of Commercial C league captains will be held at the Meder bowling alleys at 7 p. m. Friday.

Club League Elects Elder

Frick, Miller Other Officers Named at Meeting.

Fred Elder was elected president of the Club Bowling league at the annual dinner meeting held at the Liederkranz club last night.

A member of the Schoolmasters club, Elder has bowled in the league for a number of years. He succeeds Nick Schmidt, who presided at the meeting last night.

Harry Frick was elected vice president and Harold Miller was named secretary-treasurer.

The trophy emblematic of the league championship was presented to the Liederkranz club, with the Baku Grotto and Tracy & Avery clubs sharing the second prizes.

High series and game prizes were awarded to the American Legion club, which carried the heaviest handicap in the league.

Art Hilborn of the Optimists won the individual scoring championship, and also rolled the only 300 game ever shot in the league last season. He was awarded trophies.

Too Early to Shed Tears for Legion

Performances Turned In by Youngsters In Opener Spurs Team's Title Hopes.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

DEWEY DURANT and his chief assistant, Brownie Corcoran, have no reason to feel disappointed over the opening game defeat of the Mansfield entry in the Central Ohio league.

Playing under the banner of the McVey Post, American Legion, the team, stocked with many youngsters, showed up surprisingly well against the veteran-filled Federal Glass club, which hung a 2 to 0 defeat on the Mansfield outfit in Columbus Sunday.

The Mansfield hitting was spotty, but it undoubtedly will improve with practice. The inconsistent work at the plate was the only sour note in the performance, and even then the team bosses got a lot of satisfaction out of the way the the inexperienced players handled themselves on the firing line.

A particular highlight was the pitching of Howard Patterson in his debut as a semi-pro moundsman, Patterson, whose previous pitching was confined to high school and minor amateur leagues, produced a gilt-edge performance that has won him a place on the staff.

Patterson's fast ball was practically unhittable until the seventh when the Glassmen checked off four hits in a row to put across the only two runs of the game. This being his first turn on the mound this season, Patterson probably tired.

Dick Donnan, Freddy Lewis and Lloyd Beal, other youngsters who appeared in the lineup Sunday, also turned in creditable performances. Beal, for instance, might have won the ball game for the Legionnaires in the fifth if his well-smacked liner with the bases loaded had been about an inch higher. As it was, the second baseman barely was able to nab it in a miraculous leap.

If some of the veterans had done as well as the youngsters, the result might have been different.

But, as it was, Durant and Corcoran need not shed any tears at this early day.

Hi-Speeds Do Fine Job of Winning.

EARL HERRICK'S Hi-Speeds are deserving a little credit, too. The Hi-Speeds have registered two creditable victories in as many appearances, and the club stacks up as a worthy contender for the city sandlot title now held by the Mohican Chevrolets.

Petie Beer's pitching has won for him the respect of every opponent, and the Hi-Speeds seem to have found quite a ball player in Bob De Haven, who is holding down second base.

That was certainly a tough break Bill McKinley of Hayesville suffered in the game he pitched against the Ira D. Ling Canzols Sunday. With a no-hit game literally in the bag, Fred Buzard had to come through to spoil it with an infield single. Paul McCullough, who formerly hurled for the Toledo Mud Hens, suffered the same fate in a game at Youngstown Sunday.

A heavy slugger named Wurm spoiled what had developed into a mighty interesting pitching duel in Shiloh Sunday when he poled a home run with two aboard in the seventh. The damaging home run gave the Shelby Settlement a 6 to 3 lead, which it rolled into an 8 to 3 victory. Bigland and Hamman were the pitching rivals, with the former gaining the decision. Shiloh, incidentally, is looking for an opponent for Sunday.

And Now for Some Track, Field News.

THE question around here is not what happened to Fighting Fox and Bull Lea, but Cleveland Central, Mansfield Relays champion. Central has failed to live up to expectations in the meets in which it has participated since the Mansfield appearance. The Cleveland school's failure to do any damage has resulted in a general turn to Toledo Scott for the Ohio championships.

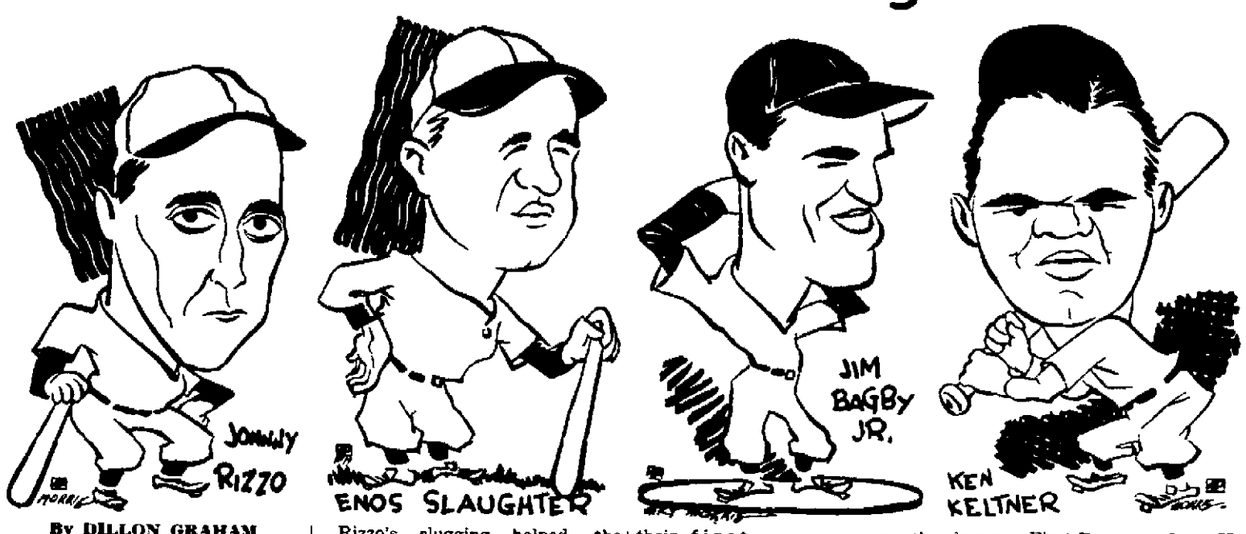
Keltner Ranks With Outstanding Rookies



By DILLON GRAHAM

NEW YORK — (AP) — Sparkling early-season performances tag this rookie crop as the best baseball has harvested in recent years.

Every spring the major league clubs ferry a large squad of recruits to southern training camps, hopeful they will make the grade but fearing they won't. All that most of them get is a coating of sun-tan and a one-way ticket back to the minors.

But this year the group which survived the preliminary exhibition games and donned major league uniforms on opening day was larger than usual. Every team in the American and National leagues has one or more freshman regulars on its roster. And most of them are likely to stick.

There's Jim Bagby, jr., of the Boston Red Sox, son of the "Old Sarge," Jim, sr., who won 31 games for Cleveland in 1920. Jim, jr., had never seen a major league game until he was tossed at the Yankees in Boston's opener. He scored a win and became the first rookie in baseball history to win an opening-day assignment.

Joe Gordon of the Yankees was labeled the No. 1 rookie this spring. This rating came because Joe had to replace the veteran Tony Lazzeri at second base. If he flopped the impregnable Yanks might be beaten. Joe's hits have been infrequent but fairly timely and his fielding has removed all doubts of his ability.

Three rookies have been stuck into the important No. 3 slot in the batting arrays—Johnny Rizzo of Pittsburgh, Enos (Country) Slaughter of St. Louis and Taft Wright of Washington.

Rizzo's slugging helped the Pirates author the longest unbeaten stretch of the early campaign. The big bat of Slaughter (he led the American association with a .382 average last season), carried the Cardinals along in the absence of Batting Champion Joe Medwick while Wright's clubbing was timely.

Cleveland came up with one of the best freshmen in Ken Keltner, who took charge at third base and removed all of Manager Os Vitt's hot corner worries.

No team has made better use of its recruits than Cincinnati. The Reds have used First-Baseman Frank McCormick, Outfielders Tony Bongiovanni and Harry Craft, Catcher Willard Hershberger and Pitchers Whitey Moore and Johnny Vander Meer.

The Chicago Cubs have made frequent use of Outfielder Trip Triplett, who led the Southern association at bat last campaign.

Casey Stengel looks for Max West to bring the Boston Bees some much needed punch. West, an outfielder on the Pacific coast, was transformed into a first baseman.

Brooklyn also brags on its pair of pitching twins, Forest Pressnell and Bill Posedel. Johnny Hudson grabbed an early advantage on Pete Coscarart in a rookie duel for second base.

Third-Baseman Don Ross and Outfielder Roy Cullenbine have been Detroit regulars, while one-half of the Philadelphia A's infield is new—First-Baseman Gene Hasson and Second-Sacker Dario Lodigiani.

Bill Terry has placed his stamp of approval on Pitcher Harold Vandenberg. First-Baseman George McQuinn and Outfielder Melvin Mazzera are St. Louis Browns' active performers.

Washington is depending heavily on Pitchers Joe Krakauskas, Kendall Chase and Emil Leonard.

HERSHBERGER STARS, LOMBARDI'S ON BENCH

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — Ernie Lombardi, the lumbering Cincinnati Reds' catcher is on the sidelines for a two-weeks period with a split finger and the big Italian may find it difficult to break back into the lineup when he recovers.

With Lombardi ,incapacitated Manager Bill McKechnie yesterday gave Willard Hershberger his first real chance of the championship campaign and the peppery youngster from Newark came through in great style as Cincinnati downed the Philadelphia Phillies 9 to 4. Hershberger secured three hits.

BATTLE TO DRAW

GARFIELD, N. J.—Fred Cochrane, 139, Elizabeth, N. J., drew with Eddie Alzek, 140, New York, (8).

SAIL FOR ENGLAND

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The youngest Walker Cup Golf team ever to represent the United States sails for England tonight determined to make it 10 straight over the British in the biennial team series and also bring the British Amateur title back to the United States.

BREAKS THREE-WAY TIE TO GAIN SINGLES LEAD

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The three-way tie in the singles event of the women's national bowling tournament was broken today. Rose Warner of Waukegan, Ill., stood at the top of the standings with a 622 score, overshadowing the 608 scores of Dorothy Burmeister of Chicago, Irene Schriefer of St. Louis and Loretta Jaspers of Cincinnati.

Clown Princes Still Flourish On Major League Ball Clubs

TAMPA, Fla. — (AP) — They've taken the horseplay out of baseball's spring training but the camp jesters can't be squelched.

Years ago practical jokers flourished their trade, sent rookies on snipe hunts, arranged dates for them and then howled hilariously at heir supposed plight when the "irate husbands" arrived, and, in general, made life miserable for the recruits.

Baseball has tamed down, but the jokers still have their fun.

Lefty Gomez, as serious as a scholar when he's out there pitching, has few peers as a wisecracker. The Yankees always have something to tell about Lefty. They're always razzing him about his law suits and domestic difficulties, but El Goofy takes it in stride and hands back more than he receives.

'Possum and Bat Boy.

One player scared the daylights out of his team's bat bay by placing a live opossum in a wash bowl. The kid switched on the lights, saw this animal gazing at him and tried to jump through the transom of his door. He got stuck and had to be pulled out.

Pepper Martin and Frenchy Bordagaray make life troublesome in the St. Louis Cardinal dressing room by hiding the trousers of their teammates, placing sand in their street shoes and placing itching powders in their socks.

Moe Berg, the educated catcher of the Boston Red Sox, probably is the best wit of the bunch, but Berg's jokes often are over the head of the average ball player. Berg, you see, has degrees from three universities and speaks seven languages. He can cuss or joke or praise in so many different tongues that he has quite an advantage over his mates.

Casey Stengel keeps up the spirits of his rookies by his jokes. However, the Boston Bees' manager has tamed considerably, and substitutes funny stories for the practical jokes of other seasons.

Hassett Under Suspicion.

The top clowns of the Grapefruit league, of course, are Nick Altrock and Al Schacht. Altrock, the Washington coach, tells jokes in a gruff voice, and looks funny without trying to with his cap askew over his ruffled grey hair and fat rolling smoothly over his barrel-like mid-riff. Schacht, former Boston Red Sox coach, is strictly a professional clown now. He breezes from one training camp to another, entertaining the fans with his antics before the exhibition games. His phantom pitcher act is a pip but he keeps the fans in stitches with everything he does.

SCHACHT . . . pro jester.

YOUNGSTOWN COLLEGE TAKES UP FOOTBALL

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Dr. Mastle Foard, athletic director of Youngstown college, announced today an eight-game football schedule for the college next fall——the first season of football for the college. The only Ohio teams on the schedule are Western Reserve and John Carroll, both of Cleveland.

KANSAS CITY WANTS TITLE BOXING MATCH

KANSAS CITY—(U.P.)—Judge H. F. McElroy, city manager, today promised to sell 1,000 tickets at $100 each as a personal guarantee for a $100,000 gate if promoters will bring a world championship boxing match to Kansas City. McElroy made the proposition to Al Weill, manager of Lou Ambers, world champion lightweight boxer. McElroy said his proposition was not necessarily directed at Ambers or the lightweight division.

CARDS SIGN STRIPP

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—The St. Louis Cardinals announced today that Joe Stripp, veteran third baseman, had agreed to terms and was en route here to play with the Cards.

BARROW HAS BIRTHDAY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees baseball club, celebrated his 70th birthday today. Barrow has been in baseball 44 years.

I'M PROUD OF YOU
IT MAKES A FELLER FEEL DANDY INSIDE WHEN HE DOES A GOOD TURN-DOESN'T IT-MOM?
I THINK I'LL HAVE TO GIVE YOU A PIECE OF PIE
OH-NO, THANK YOU-MOM-I DON'T THINK A BOY SHOULD BE REWARDED FOR DOING A GOOD TURN
BUT IF YOU INSIST, MOM
HOW DID MY APPLE DUMPLING LIKE THE PIE?
FINE-VERY FINE-THANK YOU
MOM-DID I MENTION THAT I HELPED THE POOR BLIND MAN ACROSS THE STREET THREE TIMES?

SELLING HITS MARKET AFTER HIGHER OPENING

Leaders Drop Back as Traders Refuse to Follow Yesterday's Rally.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks ran into light profit selling after a steady to higher opening today and market leaders generally fell back small amounts.

With the house debating the administration's pump-priming program, and the wage-hour controversy yet to be settled, brokers found most of their customers disinclined to follow yesterday's rally. Bonds and commodities were without definite trend.

Market analysts saw an encouraging factor in reports of machinery makers that exceptionally large volumes of inquiries had expanded the files of companies notwithstanding the continued low levels of actual bookings

While automotive observers hoped this industry had witnessed its low point for the recession, the failure of new car demand to record material improvement in the last few weeks over the March rate was said to have been unprecedented. April sales were estimated by trade services to have topped March by even less than 5 per cent.

LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Good and choice fed steers and yearlings predominated in the cattle run today and sold lower, supply far overshadowing demand. Both hogs and lambs worked lower, a feature of the lamb supply being a liberal proportion of California springers.

Hogs: 15,000, including 4,000 direct; slow, steady to 10c lower than Monday's average; top $8.05; good and choice 160-230 lbs. $7.85-8.05; 240-290 lbs. $7.75-7.95; 300-350 lbs. $7.50-7.75; most good packing sows $6.75-7.00; smooth butcher kinds mostly lightweights $7.10-7.25.

Cattle: 9,500; calves: 2,500; fat steers and long yearlings in excessive supply; prospects 25c lower, early bids being 25-50c down; common and medium grades comparatively scarce, steady to weak at $8.25 down; early top fed steers $10.15 but some held up to $10.50 or better; few loads $8 50-9 50; all reflecting sizeable downturn from Monday but very active market on light heifers and mixed yearlings and all other she stock; cows very scarce; general market firm on she stock; bulls, however, weak to 15c lower at $6.90 down; vealers firm at $7.50-9.50.

Sheep: 10,000, including 4,500 direct; late Monday fat lambs weak to 25c lower; wooled offerings $8.10-8.50 mostly, clipped lambs $7.40-7.75, few choice Colorado sprin glambs $9.40; sheep 25-50c lower, bulk shorn ewes $3.75 down; today's trade slow, steady to easier; wooled lambs downward from $8.50; good to choice clipped lambs $7.50-7.60; sheep weak to 25c lower; good to choice shorn Texas ewes $3.50.

PITTSBURGH LIVESTOCK

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—(U. S. & Pa. Dept. Agr.)—Hogs: 500; steady to 10c lower; 170-220 lbs. 8.50; heavies $7.50-8.00; 100-140 lbs. $8.25; sows $7 25 down.

Cattle: 100; nominal; good steers yesterday $8.25-9.50. Calves: 250; steady to 50c higher; good and choice vealers $9.50, selections $10.00-10.50.

Sheep: 300; steady, good and choice lambs $7.50-8.00; sheep $5.00 down. No spring lambs.

LEAGUE HEARS REPERCUSSIONS OF THREE WARS

Protests From China, Spain, and Ethiopia Fill Ears of Council Members.

(By Associated Press)

Reverberations from the wars in China, Spain and Ethiopia dinned in the ears of League of Nations Council members today along with British and French declarations in support of their "realistic" diplomacy.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo Chinese delegate, asked the council to apply provisions of the convenant to give China aid against Japan. He cited two resolutions one by the league assembly last October and another by the council in February, which recommended that league members consider individual aid to China.

"With one exception," he said, one of the league members had come to China's aid. This was believed to be Soviet Russia.

Viscount Halifax, the British foreign secretary, told the council that the recently-negotiated Anglo-Italian agreement was a contribution to world peace—attaining the same objective as that for which the league was organized.

The French foreign minister, Georges Bonnet, echoed Halifax' contention.

Selassie Fans Defeat.

But to Haile Selassie the fallen emperor of conquered Ethiopia, the British and French swing to realism meant almost certain defeat in his battle to have Ethiopia's international rights.

In accordance with their "realistic policy, Great Britain and France yesterday won assurance that they would be freed of the League obligation not to recognize Italy's conquest of the African empire.

The only dissenting council votes came from Soviet Russia, China, New Zealand and Bolivia.

While Dr. Koo charged Japan with using poison gas, the Spanish government delegate, Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, reiterated his complaints against Italian and German troops aiding the insurgents.

In Spain the insurgents were making slow progress in their efforts to drive down the Mediterranean coast toward Castellon De La Plana and Valencia.

In China the Japanese pushed toward the Lunghai railway from the south, striving to accomplish from this direction what months of fighting had failed to achieve in South Shantung province.

In Rome, Fascists said Premier Mussolini would take a step toward bringing the British-French entente into harmony with the Rome-Berlin alliance in a speech he is making at Genoa Saturday.

This became known as Reichsfuehrer Hitler, his visit to Mussolini ended, crossed Brenner Pass into Germany.

TALKS TO CLUB

John F. Kramer of Mansfield Gives Address at Galion.

GALION—The speaker Monday night at the meeting of the Galion Rotary club was John F Kramer of Mansfield. His subject was "The Dominant Life."

Twenty-two members of the club signified their intention of attending the district Rotary meeting to be held at Marion next Monday night.

W. L. Swick gave a report on the "Charter Night" meeting of the new club at Cardington last Tuesday night. Those attending from Galion were Mr and Mrs. Swick, Mr and Mrs. C S Kirk and Mr and Mrs M D. Bonsteel.

Following the meeting the board of directors met to select candidates for next year's officers of the club.

Byrdell Writtridge called the club's attention to the case of a crippled child in Galion.

CHICKENS STOLEN

ASHLAND—The theft of seven chickens from the farm of Sadie Hoover about four miles southwest of Ashland was reported here to Sheriff H F Waltz.

It was reported that the thieves pried the latch off the door of the hen house.

was taken as indication of the change.

The Ohioan's recent trip throughout the west made to sound out public feeling toward the administration following the fight on the reorganization bill, is understood to have been made at the express request of the president, however.

West has been mentioned variously for a maritime commission job and as one of the six "anonymous" assistants to the president in case the reorganization bill was passed.

CITES CHANGES

Pastor Points to Contrasts in Life in Talk to Rotary.

Startling changes that have come in communities and families within the present generation provided the basis for an address given at today's meeting of the Rotary club by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church.

A contrast of the family life of today with that of even a generation ago was made by the speaker, who also compared present costs of government with those of earlier times.

"There are some things, however, that do not change," said Rev. Swoyer, making reference to basic principles of human conduct which carry through from generation to generation.

Russell G. Clarke was chairman of the meeting, at which W. L. Miller, club president, presided.

At a meeting of the newly organized board of directors R. D. Iden was elected president of the club for the year starting July 1. Other officers elected were G. J. Kochenderfer, vice president, and Walter W. Willis, secretary.

OILING STARTS

City Begins Work on 25 Miles of Unpaved Roadway.

The oiling of the city's unpaved streets and alleys, involving approximately 25 miles of roadway and constituting one of the major items on the 1938 program of the street department, was started today, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced.

He said that 168 streets and 91 alleys had been scraped and graded to receive the oil coating. He pointed out that the program includes practically all the unpaved roadways in the city, and should the warm weather continue, the entire program will be completed in six weeks.

The city purchased approximately 60,000 gallons of road oil at a cost of $8,000. This is 10,000 gallons more than was used on the city streets last year.

REVIEW OUSTER

Officials Ordered to Act in Ex-Chief's Case.

SHELBY — Acting on instructions from the state civil service commission, Mayor D B Young will meet with the Shelby commission at city hall at 2 p. m. Wednesday to review the ouster of George Seidel as chief of the city fire department.

Youn was ordered to call the meeting after a complaint had been filed with the commission. The letter instructing the action did not state the complaint or reveal the complainant, Young said.

Seidel was discharged last summer, Young said when he remained off duty for several days without a leave of absence. Gene Schull, then assistant chief, was promoted to chief.

Report Due In U. S. Probe of Nazi-Italo Radio Broadcasts

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the federal communications council will submit to President Roosevelt this week a report suggesting means of counteracting German-Italian radio propaganda in South America.

McNinch, who heads a committee of government officials appointed by the president last February to study international radio broadcasting, said that the report probably would make no direct "recommendations," but that it would draw certain "conclusions." The final decision on action will be left to Mr. Roosevelt, he said.

Two important problems will be considered in the committee's report:

1. The extent and effect of attempts by European powers to promote their interests in South America by radio.

2. Whether the United States—if it decides to counteract European efforts—should do it through privately or government-owned radio stations.

For two years, reports have been current that Germany and Italy, and to some extent, Great Britain, have been directing special radio broadcasts to South America. Some reports charged the dictator-controlled nations with trying to indoctrinate South America with Fascist ideas.

The broadcast industry has opposed the establishment of a government-owned station to direct educational programs to other American countries, contending that private facilities are adequate.

SEEKS CHARTER

Junior Association Bids for Membership in State Body.

The Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce will bid for membership in the state and national organizations, Atty. Francis R. O'Brien, president, said today.

Directors of the Mansfield organization voted to apply for a charter at their annual reorganization session last night when they re-elected Richard Burnham chairman of the board. The application will be submitted to the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Organized about 18 months ago, the Mansfield association now has approximately 70 members.

Other officers named at last night's meeting were Robert Walter, secretary, and Eugene Earick, treasurer. Earick has been secretary during the past year and Ned Brooks was treasurer. Atty Harold Burns and Donald Kirkpatrick were named as a publicity committee.

GETS FUND FOR SALES TAX DRIVE

State Offices, Armed With $60,000, Prepare For Campaign.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Two state agencies had $60,000 today with which to press their investigations into sales tax law violations.

The state emergency board late yesterday granted the state tax commission $35,000 and the state auditor $25,000 to use in separate inquiries.

Walter Mitchell, chairman of the tax commission, told the emergency board that each of 40 examiners sent into the Cleveland area 10 days ago had accounted for $100 daily in additional revenue as a result of their investigations.

ELECT OFFICERS

SHELBY—Mary Kathryn Arnold was elected president of the Merry Makers society of the 4-H club at a recent meeting of the group held at the home of Eleanor Walters, near Shelby.

Others elected are: Dorothy Baker, vice president, Lillian Coover, reporter, Mary Frances Barnes, recreational leader and Janet Gibbens, secretary-treasurer.

MEMORIAL BUILDING PROJECT TO BE FINISHED IN FEW WEEKS

Work of remodeling, and redecorating of the first and second floors of the Memorial building will be completed within a few weeks, Walter L. Beckley, a member of the board of trustees who is in charge of the project, said today.

The first floor, which is made up of two large club rooms and a small room to the east front of the building, will be redecorated. The two large rooms will be thrown together by restoring the arch between the two which was in the building originally. The small room will be used as a library.

The lower floor has been the G. A. R. club room for many years and will continue to be used by the few Civil war veterans who still visit the building, while the United Spanish war veterans, as senior ranking veterans after the G.A.R. will have the first floor for their headquarters, Beckley said.

The second floor, which will be used as an auditorium, will have a new ceiling designed for acoustics, and the walls and floors will be redecorated. Furniture will be refinished and Venetian blinds will be used at the windows on both floors. No estimate of the cost of the improvements was given by Beckley.

The basement of the building was remodeled recently and given over to organizations of World war veterans.

Memorial building is the property of the soldiers and sailors of Madison township, and cost of maintenance and upkeep of the building is taken from the Memorial building fund which accrues from rental of the Madison theater, a part of the building. Although the original plans for the memorial specified that a tax may be levied for the upkeep, it has never been necessary as the building is self-supporting, M. Dale Ward, sr., president of the board of trustees, pointed out.

DIES IN TOLEDO

Rites to Be Held Wednesday for Charles Sweeney, 66.

GALION—Funeral services will be held in Toledo, Wednesday at 9 a. m. at the St. Francis De Sales cathedral for Charles A. Sweeney, 66, a native of Galion. Burial will be made Wednesday afternoon in Mt. Calvary cemetery, Galion, where short services also will be held.

The deceased died Monday morning at 7 o'clock. He suffered a stroke six weeks ago. He was born in Galion in 1872, the son of the late Charles and Bridget Sweeney. He left Galion when he was a young man and for the past five years had made his home at the Astor hotel in Toledo. He had been in business in Detroit and Toledo until he retired several years ago.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. John Leech of Galion, and Mrs. H. E. Johnston of Bexley; four nephews and two nieces.

JAPANESE NAVY OPENS ATTACK

Starts Drive On Coast Town; Notes Warn Foreigners.

SHANGHAI — (AP) — The Japanese navy today launched an expedition against Amoy, chief port of the southern coastal province of Fukien.

Foreign dispatches said a Japanese naval force landed after heavy bombardments by 12 warships offshore and relays of bombing planes. The invaders came to grips at once with the Chinese garrison.

Japanese planes dropped leaflets on Kulangsu island, Amoy's foreign settlement, urging foreign residents and foreign vessels to leave the port and announcing Japan's intention to occupy the Chinese city.

Meet Me at Maxwell's

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

IT IS time for planting a garden here with us. We plowed up two acres or more of rich turfed loam that had not been farmed for thirty years.

The roots of the apple tree broke rather easily as the plow struck them in the spring. Those of the old mulberry tree were soft, leathery, long and tough. From a distance, lying on the ground, they looked like reddish crawling things. The taller roots which held their storm of mammoth height, were torn from the soil in thick, matted clumps. An intense, heavy greenish odor emanated from the wounded rhizomes. I picked some up and jerked them up and down until the soil was shaken out. What remained was like a dangling skeleton.

The field looked rough in open fallow. Great pieces of half turned sod and newly cut apple-stumps stood out above the surface. Here and there, large granite boulders showed their dark, red domes, blotched with lichens.

The tractor echoed from the nearby woods as its large wheels moved up and down on the uneven surface, dragging huge hoodoos to the border of the field, pulling the double cultipacker. An eight-foot disk followed cutting the sod one way, then another and after that the cultipacker was used again, until the garden looked like a level, corrugated floor.

I felt like a pioneer making this field ready to grow crops again. The whole family joined in planting onion sets, peas, beans, radishes and carrots. Sonny, his seven-year-old back bare to the waist, got a very fine start toward a coat of tan, while he painstakingly planted one row of onions upside down.

I went barefoot, with the children, and felt the cool soft velvet of the soil beneath my soles. Like them piled the precious dirt around until it buried my feet above the ankles. We were tired when evening came, but it was the pleasant tiredness of accomplishment.

TORCH PARADE IN BERLIN TO GREET HITLER

Heavy Guarded Train Speeds Toward Germany Following Mussolini Farewell.

(By International News Service)

EN ROUTE TO BERLIN WITH HITLER'S SPECIAL TRAIN —(INS)—Bolstered by the "intimate understanding" between Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy, Chancellor Adolf Hitler returned to his "greater reich" today after a week spent in strengthening the Rome-Berlin axis.

His train, which left Florence just one minute before midnight, crossed the Brenner Pass into Germany's new "eastern province" of Austria at 8:25 a. m.

An hour later the chancellor's train passed through Innsbruck, where he was cheered by thousands of Austrians.

The fuehrer, it was revealed, sent a message of thanks to Premier Mussolini and the Italian royal house for his reception in Italy when his train halted briefly at Brenner.

10-Mile Parade.

At Berlin, where he is scheduled to arrive at 10 p. m., Hitler will receive a tremendous reception. In the nature of a triumphal entry into his own capital, the fuehrer will be greeted by a 10-mile torch parade, blazing illumination and a salute by aircraft batteries.

At the frontier station, symbolic outpost of his new domain, der feuhrer was given a rousing welcome by Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart Austrian governor, and other high Nazi leaders.

Hitler boarded his special, heavily guarded train after bidding Il Duce a cordial farewell at the ancient city of Florence, where the two dictators brought to an end their six-day reunion.

With far-reaching consequences for Europe expected to result from their meeting, Hitler and Mussolini shook hands in brotherly fashion on the Florence station platform while a military band played the Italian and German national anthems.

A large crowd of Italians gathered at the station to watch the dramatic farewell before Hitler began his 1,000-mile journey to Berlin over heavily guarded tracks.

Last of many functions attended by Hitler was a performance of two acts of a Verdi opera. This interlude ended his ten-hour pause in Florence to view the wonders of the the Italian rennaisance. Earlier, following a tour of Florentine art galleries, Il Duce gave a glittering banquet for his Nazi guest.

In his parting message to Italy, Hitler indicated his visit to Italy had sealed Italo-German diplomatic co-operation and tied closer together the Nazi and Fascist parties.

man who investigated the accident, said Banks apparently lost control of the machine. The car plowed through a field for about 75 yards before crashing into a telephone pole, then struck a culvert and rolled over three times, landing on its wheels again along side of the highway.

Banks was thrown from the car as it overturned. His body landed on the highway.

Freeman said witnesses told him that there were no other cars on the highway at the time of the accident. The machine was headed toward Mansfield.

A half-pint whisky bottle, partially filled, was found in the machine, the deputy said.

Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. McBeth were trapped in the rear seat of the light coach when it finally came to a halt in an upright position at the edge of the pavement. They were removed to General hospital in the John S. Jones ambulance.

H. A. Danals of Ontario who with George Taylor of Mansfield, witnessed the accident, said that he and several motorists worked for several minutes to remove Mrs. McBeth from the wreckage. The running board of the car had been stoved against the door and prevented the immediate removal of the women.

Danals said he saw the machine coming toward him as he worked with Taylor laying a walk at a nearby home. He added that for no apparent reason the car suddenly shot across the highway and into a field.

"I saw the machine shoot across the road and thought at first that the driver was going to park on that side of the road," Danals said.

Taylor related that when the car struck the culvert Banks was thrown from the car. He said the man was apparently dead when they reached him.

Danals told officers that the machine did not appear to be traveling at an excessive rate of speed, but the force of the impact against the pole ripped the handle from the car door and it was found imbedded deep in the wood.

Banks' body was removed to his home in Kenton today.

est single factor in community life."

He told of the professional men and community leaders in Cleveland who have come from the settlement houses, and whose lives testify to the fact that the best investment is made in the lives of boys and girls.

As an example he cited the Kindergarten Rhythm band of the Friendly House, which helped entertain last night. The band is made up of very small children from the settlement house, all playing toy instruments. In their red and white costumes and led by diminutive Lincoln Adkinson they made a colorful appearance and a big hit with the audience.

Rev. Baker also cited the Visiting Nurse who was called from the meeting to answer a sick call. The Friendly House and the Visiting Nurses are both supported by the Community Fund.

A highlight of the meeting was the choral music by the Singers Club, under the direction of Edith Fletcher Jameson, with Elsie Ireland at the piano.

The "Pep Boys" of Community Fund drives, William F. Black and Charles Conklin, led the community singing. Black composed a new song hit this year which is sung to the tune of "Heigh Ho" from "Snow White," and tells of Mansfield's need for "more dough."

Philip Ober, president of the Community Fund, and Mayor Claude M. Hunter, were among those who spoke briefly during the meeting.

PAROLE REVOKED, SENT TO O. S. R.

Youth Out On Probation 2 Months Faces 1 to 20 Year Term.

Two months after he was placed on probation in Richland county common pleas court, Vaughn W. Watkins, 18, of 102 South Foster street, was in the Mansfield reformatory today, his probation revoked by Judge C. H. Huston.

Watkins, who pleaded guilty last March to an indictment for operating a motor vehicle without the owners' consent, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the reformatory after he was involved in the attempted robbery of a store on South Main street. His term of probation was for three years.

Watkins was haled into court after police said they caught him attempting to break into the store.

cion was pending against her.

"She apparently took her life on the spur of the moment," he said. "She appeared normal when I had breakfast with her yesterday.

"She had told us, however, that in case of her death she wished to have her body cremated and that the ashes should be thrown to the wind."

He said the family would comply with this wish, and the body would be taken to Cleveland for cremation after funeral services tentatively set for 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The body of the 46-year-old divorcee was found under her new coupe in a garage here yesterday only a few hours after she returned from a trip to Canton where she visited Cable, quarreled with him and finally shouted:

"You haven't heard the last of me."

Both Questioned.

Both Cable and Miss Ludwig were questioned for days during the investigation of Mrs. Cable's death last year and Manderbaugh quoted the Canton building contractor as admitting he maintained an apartment for Miss Ludwig in Akron. Miss Ludwig likewise admitted the relationship, extending over a period of years, the chief said.

"I am not satisfied at all," Manderbaugh said, "with the story that she took her life because she was in poor health."

Coroner C. C. Webster returned a verdict of suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning. The body was held in the establishment of Gordon Thompson, which was guarded by policemen throughout the night on orders of Police Chief Kenneth Pounds of Conneaut.

Manderbaugh, with County Detective H. W. Grossglaus and City Detective Ted Koellner of Canton, arrived late yesterday, conferred with Conneaut police and interviewed Rodebaugh.

Manderbaugh said the suicide had provided no definite information on the slaying in Canton but turned up a number of things to be checked.

Miss Ludwig left here home here Friday and did not return until Sunday morning. Canton police said she visited Cable in Canton Saturday morning at the home of A. B. Cable, Dueber's brother. She demanded, they told police, that they pay her "for the best seven years of her life."

Tells of 'Threats.'

"She threatened to make it tough for me if we did not give her the money," police quoted Cable. Manderbaugh said he wanted to learn where Miss Ludwig spent Friday night. He said the theory that she committed suicide because of illness (ulcers of the stomach), did not coincide with the three-day trip. Relatives said the divorcee frequently drove away without telling where she was going.

Manderbaugh said she had been seen on several occasions with Cable since their detention last March. Police said Rodebaugh told them Miss Ludwig never discussed her troubles with other members of the family. They said, Manderbaugh reported, that the slaying of Mrs. Cable never had been discussed. Chief Pounds of Conneaut said the suicide had provided little information that would be helpful in the investigation.

The Rodebaughs, although reticent about discussing the death of Miss Ludwig, said they had no idea she intended to take her life.

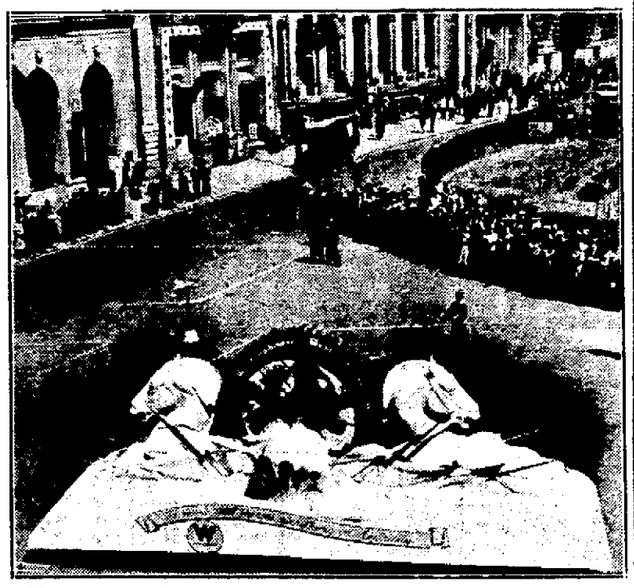
Mrs. Rodebaugh left the house at 6:50 a. m. yesterday to go to her work in a clothing factory. Miss Ludwig arose soon after that and prepared breakfast for Rodebaugh and herself. She appeared perfectly normal, Rodebaugh was quoted by Pounds. Rodebaugh left the house at 7:30 a. m.

Police set the time of Miss Ludwig's death at between 8:00 a. m. and noon, when Mrs. Rodebaugh returned for lunch and found the body.

The body was lying under the car. Miss Ludwig's coat was pulled up over the exhaust pipe in such a way as to force the fumes into her face. The motor was still running. Mrs. Rodebaugh turned off the ignition and summoned help.

Manderbaugh said the only marks on the body were bruises on the arms which could have been made by someone grasping her arms too tightly.

Prize World Fair Float In City



The above float, which brought cheers from New Yorkers last week in the gigantic preview parade of the world's fair, and won first prize in its division, was to be exhibited in Mansfield today. It is the entry of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and depicts the development of electrical power. The float was to be exhibited at Central park, at the Westinghouse plant and later at Senior high school.

1 Dead, 3 Hurt In This Wreck

—News-Journal Photo.

Here is the wrecked car in which William Banks, 53, colored driver, was killed and two passengers, Mrs. J. T. Glenn and Mrs. Clay McBeth, were injured. All are from Kenton. In the background can be seen the telephone pole which the car snapped off as it left Route 30-S, five miles west of Mansfield. The two women were on their way to Ashland to visit Mrs. Glenn's sister at the time of the accident.

WINS CONTEST

Union High Senior Victor in Essay-Oration Event.

Taking first place in a county contest at Union high school in Weller township, Miss Celia Kent, Union high school senior, last night won the right to represent Richland county in the district Verna Elsinger Memorial essay-oration contest May 16 at Medina.

Miss Kent competed with winners from the Bellville and Lucas high schools. Her topic was "Safety—Home, Farm and Highway." Other contestants were Miss Hazel Young of Lucas and Miscs Lucille Kochheiser of Bellville, who won second place.

Sponsored by the farm bureau and Richland county rural schools, the contest provides rural pupils with an opportunity to win college scholarships. District winners in the state will meet at Columbus during the Ohio State fair.

The music departments of the Bellville, Lucas and Union school furnished entertainment during last night's program. Awards were presented by Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools.

TAKEN BY DEATH AT AGE 45 TODAY

Mrs. Rose Elsasser, Bucyrus, Dies In Hospital Today.

BUCYRUS—Mrs. Rose Elsasser, 45, wife of August Elsasser, died in the City hospital today. She underwent a major operation recently.

The survivors include three sons, Robert of Cincinnati and Arthur and Howard of Bucyrus; three brothers, Carl Jacobs of Bucyrus, Rufus Jacobs of Florida, and Frederick Jacobs of Mansfield, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Devore of Crestline and Mrs. R. B. Jones of Bear River, Colo. She was a member of the Good Hope Lutheran church and Missionary society.

Funeral services will be held Thursday but the arrangements are incomplete.

BODY IN POND

Believe Farmhand Murder Suspect Ended Own Life.

DELMAR, Del.—(INS)—The body of a youth identified as Raymond Dickerson, 20-year-old farmhand sought in the fatal shooting of his uncle, Sperry Culver, 60, was recovered this afternoon from a mill race in Leonard's pond, near here.

Authorities said they believed Dickerson ended his life to foil a posse organized to apprehend him in connection with the slaying.

ACCEPTS CALL

First Lutheran Assistant to Take Bucyrus Pulpit.

Rev. J. David Mumford, assistant pastor of the First Lutheran church for the past 11 months, has accepted a call to become pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church at Bucyrus.

Rev. Mumford was extended the invitation to serve as pastor at a meeting of the congregation last Sunday. He will move to Bucyrus June 6, and will preach his first sermon there June 12.

Rev. Mumford came to Mansfield, June 15, 1937, following his graduation from the Gettysburg Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa. He will replace Rev. E. F. C. Stahl in Bucyrus. Rev. Stahl has accepted a call to another church.

Replacing Rev. Mumford here will be Rev. Milton T. Englehart, a graduate of the Chicago Lutheran Seminary, Chicago, Ill.

TWO PAROLED

Knox and Crawford Convicts to Leave London Farm.

Two convicts from nearby counties were among the 34 inmates at the London prison farm to be granted paroles by the Ohio board of parole, dispatches from Columbus said today.

Mike Zefe, Knox county, under sentence for larceny, will be released June 8. Floyd Orewiler, Crawford county, under sentence for neglect to minor children, was also paroled, effective Oct. 23.

FLIERS MAPPING WARSAW FLIGHT

Seek Permission to Fly New U. S. Plane to Poland.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Five Polish airmen studied the maps of a 16,500-mile route today over which they hope to fly their California-built transport monoplane to Warsaw.

Only thing lacking before the Poles can hop off from Union Air terminal tomorrow or Thursday is permission from certain South American countries to cross their territory.

However, if last-minute changes demand it, the $90,000 twin-engined Lockheed will be flown to New York for crating and shipment to Poland for use in an air line.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAYS

SHELBY—Rev. W. W. Ralph, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. D. B. Young, First Lutheran church pastor, celebrated their birthdays on Monday at their respective homes.

LEAGUE TAKES FEATURE ROLE IN MOVIE PLOT

Two Films Will Depict Ideals and Activities of Body in Session at Geneva.

(By United Press)

GENEVA—The League of Nations has decided to go into the movies.

For the first time in the history of the Geneva institution, the secretariat is to undertake the production of two films about the league, its ideals, scope and activity. They are to be talkies produced in both French and English.

To assure that first-rate scenarios are obtained for these films, the secretariat, in accordance with the decision of the 18th session of the assembly, has opened a competition with prizes for the best manuscripts. Scenarios must reach the secretariat here by Aug. 1 next, for judging by an international committee of critics and diplomats.

The main film is to develop the general idea of the league, depicting the fundamental purposes of the covenant and the principal activities of the organization This is to run 6,000 feet.

The special film is to deal with some one aspect of league work such as the settlement of a political dispute. Other suggested subjects include achievements of the various league committees ranging from health work to the standardization of highway signals. This film would be 1,500 feet long.

Prizes for the main film total $460, with first prize being not less than $230. For the special film the awards amount to $150, with a $90 minimum first prize

It is understood that the secretariat has the right, in the case of any film for which an award has been made, to make such changes in the scenario as may be necessary for its production as a film. The copyright of all draft scenario submitted for competition which receive a prize will be vested in the league.

SENDS 40 TO SCOUT MEETING

Delegation to Represent Area Council at Annual National Session at Cleveland.

Forty Boy Scout officials and troop committeemen from the Johnny Appleseed Area council are expected to go to Cleveland Friday and Saturday to attend the 28th annual meeting of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Heading the Mansfield delegation will be W. S. Valmore, official delegate of the area, Floyd Dent, area scout executive, and L. A. Ott, council president.

In addition to the officials and troop officials, the area will be represented by the 20-piece Mansfield Boy Scout orchestra which will furnish music for the annual banquet to be held Saturday evening at Hotel Statler.

This is the second invitation the group has received to play at a national meeting. In 1930 the orchestra went to New York City to play during the national meeting at Hotel Pennsylvania. The orchestra is under the direction of Eugene Smart.

Among the speakers to be heard during the convention will be Wheeler McMillan, editorial director of "The Country Home" magazine, and Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette college.

Boy Scouts of Greater Cleveland will also take part in the meeting. Friday evening, the 6,751 scouts and 597 cubs of the Cleveland council will be hosts at a scout circus to be held in the Arena.

The convention will open Friday and continue through Saturday.

When working under pressure, Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, cut his sleep to four hours a night.

AKRON MAN HIGHLY PLEASED WITH RESULTS OF HARD TEST

Says Benefits From World's Tonic Astonishing

Advises Trial When Acid Indigestion, Dizziness, Painful Joints and Muscles Appear.

An enthusiastic booster for World's Tonic found it difficult getting words to describe how pleased and thankful he was after taking only a few bottles of this famous medicine. He is Mr. Alfred Macklin of 946 May St., Akron, Ohio.

"I'm so highly pleased that I can't find words to express my thanks to World's Tonic. To think that just a few bottles would cause such amazing good results is almost unbelievable. During recent years my health has been poor. Indigestion bothered me and I ate very little. Even so I'd have heartburn and rushing of blood to my head. Bitter, hot liquids would fill my throat, food would appear to decay instead of digest and I always had a bad taste in my mouth and a coated tongue. At times even muscles seemed sore and stiff. I tried all sorts of medicines but mine was a stubborn case and relief was almost impossible. Constipation was almost an accepted evil with me. Some of my friends were saying good things about World's Tonic and advised me to try it. I told them they were giving it a mighty hard test but they insisted and I started using it. What impressed me most was the rapid improvement of my constipation problem. Evidently this was what helped cause all the other troubles.

"After three or four bottles, I am already eating and sleeping good, not bothered with gas, heartburn, bloating and dizziness. My nerves are quieted and I can do a day's work without suffering from all the old familiar aches and pains. World's Tonic certainly stood the test and gave me much more value than I expected."

Be careful of sluggish kidneys and stomach. Keep poisonous wastes moving. Give World's Tonic a regular place in your home medicine cabinet.

TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1938.

The "cold days of May" may run through the whole summer for some of the budding political ambitions.

If everybody became as enthusiastic about his work as race fans do about the derby this would be an even greater country.

A large following awaits leadership in a movement that promises to abolish taxes and provide "American standards of living" for everybody—without anybody working.

Democracy Begins at Home.

DURING their recent conference on "Making Democracy Work," the young men from Cornell, Dartmouth and the University of Pennsylvania brought out one point which is too often neglected. They emphasized the need of efficient local government.

They recommended elimination of unnecessary local offices, consolidation of duties, and, where possible, the consolidation of small, rival governmental units.

It is important that citizens in a democracy understand something of international and national problems, of economics and trade. It is even more important that they "make democracy work" in their own communities by means of honest, efficient and just government, with all citizens participating by vote and supporting elected officials who try to do a good job.

If we can't make democracy work in the immediate circle in which the individual citizen has most influence, how can we expect to make it work in the larger fields where he must act wholly through representatives?

Why So Wasteful and Untidy?

AN AMERICAN who has just traveled across the country, from California to New York, with an English friend, reports as follows regarding the effect our scenery had on her guest:

"All the way I tried to point out to her the beauties of the country. She graciously acknowledged that there were colorful deserts, lovely sunsets, beautiful trees, fine rivers. But I am sure that her memory of her journey is a composite picture of automobile cemeteries, rubbish heaps, hideous railway stations and sidings, tumbledown shanties, filthy back yards and, above all, of refuse dumps everywhere. She was astounded at the thousands of abandoned motor cars and empty tin cans, and asked plaintively: 'Why are Americans so wasteful and untidy?'"

Because, in the main, people have been so much hurried in building cities that they have had little time for orderly planning toward greater tidiness, and natural resources have been so abundant that habits of wastefulness have become almost universal.

The filth and squalor of slum sections reflect more on the city as a whole than on the miserable dwellers in such sections. The heterogeneous character of population in the average city, with consequent mixture of ignorance and indolence with intelligence and industry accounts largely for the extremes that exist in living conditions and surroundings.

Martyr to Humanity.

ANOTHER political martyr, a humanitarian and pacifist, has just died in Germany. He is Carl von Ossietzky, who was awarded the Nobel peace prize in 1936. At that time he had already spent two years in a Nazi concentration camp, where he became a victim of tuberculosis. His death, attributed to inflammation of the brain, occurred in a Berlin sanitorium.

Ossietzky never enjoyed the $40,000 peace prize. Most of it was embezzled by a crooked lawyer and the small balance he was unable to use. Whatever private funds he had seem to have been confiscated.

So passes another prophet of peace, not without honor except in his own land and among his own people He had served Germany in the World war. Afterward he boldly declared the iniquity of that war and the folly of all war. Naturally a regime that preaches the glory of warfare and lives by war preparation and the gospel of relentless force could not tolerate such a man. But there will be more of his kind—and eventually they will win.

It COULD Happen Here.

THE SUNDAY morning automobile fatality just west of Galion—in which two 26-year-old Galion young men met death—is one of those sad occurrences that might have as easily happened in the vicinity of Mansfield—and might have as easily claimed two Mansfield young men as victims.

An especially pathetic angle is that the tragedy occurred on Mother's day, thus making it a day of grief instead of joy for the mother of each of the young men.

Such crashes as this provide clear evidence that some drivers either place too low a value on their own lives or do not realize the danger involved in driving a car.

Another Bible Revision.

A GROUP of distinguished theologians has begun work on a new revision of the Bible to give "an official version embodying the best results of modern scholarship." The work is undertaken by the International Council of Religious Education and is expected to take five years. It is the first revision since publication of the American Standard version in 1901.

Dr. William A. Irwin of the University of Chicago, one of the twelve scholars engaged in the work, explains that present-day knowledge of the Hebrew and Greek languages "enables us to understand more truly the thought of original writers." The revisers hope to put that thought into words which readers can understand better than they do some of the "obscure if not actually unintelligible" words and phrases of the King James version.

> "When the King James version was produced" says Dr. Irwin it was a great achievement of biblical scholarship, and it continues one of the literary treasures of our language, coming as it does from the age of Shakespeare and Milton."

That literary treasure will remain, unharmed by any number of revisions aimed at modern clarity. New versions are necessary and useful, but until one is written which surpasses the King James Bible in literary beauty and value, they will be merely supplementary and clarifying texts.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GLOVER

BY COUNTING noses you can discover that the New Deal is feeding professors back into colleges and into the marts of business about as fast as it is drawing them out.

You could go into flights of fancy about how the New Deal influence was being spread among the colleges if you did not recall that several professors left without any idea whatever of spreading the doctrines of the New Deal. Some left liking it; others slammed the door as they went out.

Outward Bound.

EXHIBIT No. 1 in most tabulations is Rex Tugwell, who came from Columbia as a professor of economics and urged farmers and labor to "surge" for this and that. He bounded from headline to headline until he retired from the Resettlement Administration to go into the molasses business.

Raymond Moley came from Columbia to become a front-line "brain truster" but grew critical in time and retired to the publishing business and further teaching at Columbia.

Prof. George Warren, head of the department of agricultural economics at Cornell was an early presidential advisor on gold matters, although he never left his post at Cornell. Now he is retiring as head of the department and is being succeeded by William I. Myers.

Myers, one time professor of farm finance at Cornell, came to the government early in the New Deal and recently has headed the Farm Security Administration. When at school he kept 5,000 chickens industriously laying by treating them to scientific food and ultra-violet rays.

James M. Landis, law instructor at Harvard almost in his boyhood, coursed through the Federal Trade Commission and the chairmanship of the Securities and Exchange Commission before returning to Harvard as dean of law.

Lloyd K. Garrison, member of the first National Labor Relations board, now teaches law at Wisconsin university.

John Dickinson, once assistant secretary of commerce and later assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, now is dean of law at the University of Pennsylvania. Earlier he had taught law at Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

Fred D. Fagg, jr., bounded from a law chair at Northwestern university, through the chairmanship of the Bureau of Aeronautics and back to top job in the Northwestern university school of commerce.

O. M. W. Sprague, professor of economics at Harvard, served for a time as special adviser on economics to the treasury department but left after an extended disagreement on policy and continued at Harvard.

Two Recruits.

THURMAN ARNOLD, Yale law professor, is the most recent New Deal acquisition, coming in as assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division. Another outstanding Yale law teacher, William O. Douglas, now is chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission.

One thing noticeable about these cases is that most of them come from the minor leagues in the teaching profession, turn a trick or two for the government and go back to jobs in the academic big leagues.

THREE HEADS, ONE BODY

Study Brazil's Wage-Hour Decree

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Brazil, operating at present under a dictatorship, indulges in no long-drawn-out legislative controversy over such an issue as the establishment of a fair wage-and-hour system.

President (or Dictator) Getulio Vargas simply signs a decree and that settles the matter in jig time, at least until the next revolution.

He has just signed one intended to solve this particular problem, of wages and hours.

It may not prove to be a satisfactory solution. The plan may not be as fair as Vargas says it is, and perhaps means it to be.

Nevertheless, the ukase is interesting, considering our own wage-hour rumpus. Even a Latin American autocrat may hit on a bright idea.

Anyway, some of our wage-hour disputants are studying it.

THUMBS DOWN HERE.

Yankee labor turns thumbs down on it instantly.

Northern North American industrialism disapproves of it.

Yet it embodies certain principles that our Dixie-land lawmakers have been arguing for.

AS VARGAS SEES IT.

President Vargas starts on the assumption that the worker is entitled to a sufficient stipend to support himself and his family in reasonable comfort according to the standards of the community in which they live.

He assumes also that the worker is entitled to human hours.

He says it does not matter whether or not the individual employer can afford to guarantee such wages and hours in his especial area; if he cannot afford to he had better get out, go elsewhere and leave his deserted area to a more natural development.

GREAT VARIANCE.

But Vargas does distinguish between areas.

Brazil is bigger than the continental United States including Alaska. It extends from the boiling-hot tropics into the temperate zone. Its conditions, from spot to spot, vary. Its production also varies, from rubber and mahogany, on down into coffee, cotton and cattle. It has some sizable manufacturing interests.

In the far south (the cooler part of the country) the inhabitants have to scrabble for livelihoods.

In the north (the tropics) the natives work for pay only as a favor. A grass house is a domicile. A cotton shirt and pair of pants is a wardrobe. The denizen lies under a tree with his mouth open and fruit drops into it. All he has to furnish is mastication and digestion. He isn't ambitious, either.

DIFFERENTIATES.

President Vargas differentiates between these regions.

Brazil has 20 states, a federal district and a territory.

The presidential decree creates a wage-hour board in each of them—each board's job being to see that its own locality's labor is adequately paid and not overly sweated as to hours.

Maximum hours doubtless should be much the same everywhere.

As to rates of pay, Vargas sees the justice in a differential.

He reasons that, if an exceptionally enterprising toiler in the easy-going state of Para wants more money, he should go south to Parana, where pay is higher; if a Parana-ite prefers Para's comparative ease he should go there.

* * *

SIMILAR IN U. S.?

Brail, of course, is an exaggeration of the United States.

Still, there is an analogy.

Dixie is cheaper for workers to live in; therefore industry trends in that direction, for the sake of lower pay, longer hours, more profit for employerdom.

Hence Dixie's cry for a labor-hour "differential" — which has tied up the wage-hour bill.

The industrial north doesn't like to be sucked dry by lower living costs in the increasingly industrial south. The industrial south wants to continue the process of sucking.

President Vargas of Brazil's decree provides a "differential."

That is exactly what our industrial north objects to and our industrial south insists on.

What It Means:

The New Third Party.

—By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON — Ask young Bob La Follette what this new National Progressive party is all about, and he tells you it is primarily a personal invitation to Mr. Liberal Voter who doesn't feel at home with the Democrats and Republicans. No disgruntled Socialists or Communists need apply.

Senator Bob La Follete and his brother, Governor Phil, co-founders of the party, are practical politicians; they know the radical stamp is no good for all-around vote-getting anywhere in the United States.

Then ask Young Bob why the baby party was launched at this particular time, and you'll get a lot of interesting reasons that haven't yet appeared on the record.

"Fact it," explains Young Bob seriously, "a real American liberal is not getting a square deal from either of the major political parties right now. The conservative wings of both the Democratic and Republican parties are playing hob with President Roosevelt's progressive 1936 platform. The Democratic party in particular is divided, and the program the party pledged itself to carry out is in danger."

'Sabotage' By Conservatives.

YOUNG BOB tells you he thinks a majority of voters in this country approved the Roosevelt 1936 platform when they re-elected the New Deal President. He believes the conservatives are sabotaging that program — the same conservatives who pledged themselves to carry it out.

"We are assuming," he goes on, "that the majority still wants a liberal, progressive program and they want it as soon as they can get it. We simply are offering them the opportunity to get the job done.

"Only the broadest outline of a platform has been presented. Details, candidates—all of that comes later, depending on the support we get. Principles we have stated. The program itself must come to us from the people who want this party."

Puts It Up To Voters.

YOUNG BOB takes off his horn-rimmed glasses. He looks for all the world like a business man discussing a sales campaign—not at all like a spell-binder trying to work up the emotions of voters.

"The demand for this party is right here," he says, waving his hand toward the Senate. "It has been growing for a long time. Why, in my 13 years on Capitol Hill, I have seen one single strictly party vote. Ask any Congressman what his politics is, he won't tell you he's a Democrat or a Republican, he'll tell you what kind of a Democrat or Republican he is. When parties get that way, they are no longer hanging together.

"But you can't expect a new political party to grow like Topsy. Somebody must express the principles. Somebody has to write a general outline. We have only made a beginning. We have no specific campaigns in mind. We don't have our eyes glued on 1938, '40 or even '44. We are not hooked up to any time schedule. We hope and believe that a majority of the voters want to express themselves, want to feel that their vote will count."

So, says Senator Bob, the progressives who supported Roosevelt in 1936 are still for Roosevelt. They merely are against the Democratic party. They think it is killing the Roosevelt program.

You feel the new Progressive party would like to run Roosevelt for President in 1940—if he wants to take the chance. But Young Bob won't talk names and dates. He is appealing to a broad band of voters and he does not want to give any liberal a reason not to look into the new party plans.

Party a Perennial.

THIS movement really is the third appearance of a progressive party that began stirring the sod back in 1910, when such Republicans as old Fighting Bob La Follette, George Norris, William E. Borah and Hiram Johnson were throwing political monkey wrenches into their own party's machinery.

In those days, Theodore Roosevelt, for one, and Woodrow Wilson, for another, saw the ideals of these men making an impression on a broad section of the nation's voters.

Roosevelt warned the Republicans, and Wilson warned the Democrats. Roosevelt was willing to lead the Republicans into progressive channels, and Wilson was a candidate for President under the banners of the "new freedom."

The Democrats heeded Wilson but the Republicans rejected Roosevelt, so he ran as the head of the Progressive party ticket. Wilson won, and the combined vote of the two "progressive candidates — Wilson and Roosevelt — was more than 7,000,000 ahead of the regular Republican Taft.

Then came the war and its aftermath of confusing economic ups and downs. It was not until 1924 that the genuine progressive movement put in its second appearance. This time, old Fighting Bob scorned the two major parties, and carried the banners alone. He polled 5,000,000 votes—a mere drop in the bucket.

In 1938 political confusion comes again. The American Labor party has real strength in New York state. Straw polls indicate Roosevelt popularity falling off slightly in the Far West and South. And here comes that same old progressive movement poking its head above the surface, headed by the sons of old Fighting Bob.

It looks as though the progressive movement is a perennial—and a hardy perennial at that.

"I Choose to Live!"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(To "Gorty," who has made living seem a finer thing for many of us.)

* * *

of DYING—
Rather, be afraid of NOT LIVING.

Do not grieve for LOSS BY DEATH—
Grieve, instead, for LACK OF LIFE.

Do not fear
Cancer and T. B.
Which waste the flesh—
Save your fear for COMPLACENCY
And COWARDICE
Which waste the spirit.

No not worry
About facing DEATH—
Worry, rather,
About dodging LIFE.
Worry lest you lack
The courage to face
The CHALLENGE of LIFE...
Or the eagerness to take
The ABUNDANCE of LIFE...
Or the eagerness to seek
The ADVENTURES of LIFE.

The tragic people
Are not those who DIE,
But those who are AFRAID TO LIVE!

DEATH is not
The hard thing—
LIFE is
The hard thing,
The humbling thing.
DEATH can only
Lay you low—
But LIFE
CAN SHOW YOU UP!
LIFE, not DEATH,
Is the great auditor.
LIFE, not DEATH,
Puts you in the red.

We are not born
To DIE—
We are born to LIVE.
We are born to face
Those swift, surging tides
Of dream and desire,
Risk and revolt,
Crusade and adventure,
Which make up LIFE.
We are born to prove
The LIFE which is in us
Not to prepare for
The DEATH which awaits us.

Do not be afraid of Dying too soon—
Be afraid, instead,
Of not living enough—
Not risking enough—
Not feeling enough—
Not fighting enough—
Not betting enough
On the fire
That is in You!

It is not hard
To DIE—
Any fool can,
Every fool must,
DIE some day—
But it is Extremely hard
To LIVE.
It takes a strong
And brave and Understanding man
To be willing to LIVE
Each day,
And not merely exist.

You shudder and Say to yourself
"I will die some day!"
But you are wrong—
You DIE every day.
And every day
You take your choice
Between living and dying—
Between getting on
And going on.
It takes no courage
To DIE—
But it takes Enormous courage
To say
Each day—
"I CHOOSE TO LIVE!
"REGARDLESS
"OF THE COST!"

Timely Editorial

Answer Has Changed.

"Are you better off today than you were a year ago?" President Roosevelt asked the nation in a fireside chat after his first year in office. He intended it as a rhetorical question, a question that implied its answer. He believed that from all over the nation the answer would come back, "Yes!"

Four years have passed during which the president and his New Deal supporters have spent billions of dollars in an effort to reinforce that "Yes!" The fireside chats have lost something of their confidence and have become explanatory and defensive.

Recently the question was revived in a survey conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion. "Are you better off today than you were a year ago?" was asked of voters in all sections of the country. And this time the answer came back in no uncertain terms, "No!" It was not a decision on party lines. Democrats and Republicans by big majorities, voted "No!"

Only one interpretation of the result is possible: The economic spirit is at low ebb and the means in which the government trusted to quicken it are not having the effect.—Detroit News.

Sophomore.

"What," it has been asked, "is a sophomore?"

This is a question the response to which need not be. "It is hard to say."

The sophomore — by which is meant a second-year college student—is a composite of wise man and fool, wit and nit-wit, sage and —sap!

Literally so.

For the word "sophomore," which was imported into America from the University of Cambridge, in England, where it is no longer used, is a combination of two Greek words meaning, respectively, philosopher and moron!

Little beauties by the way
Do not overlook,
Springtime violets that glow
Darkly by the brook.

Some gay word of beauty learned

From such tiny things,
But from knowing their true worth

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Every year at the beginning of the baseball season a new fund of stories dealing with the intellectual shortcomings of rookies makes the rounds. There is the one about the rookie with the Cincinnati Reds who accompanied the team to the big town, and it was his first glimpse of New York.

His room happened to be on the 17th floor of a hotel, and after two days his legs had charliehorses and he was so weary he would fall into an exhausted slumber every time he sat down.

"What in the world is the matter with you?" inquired his manager, eyeing the youngster in distress.

"Well, chief," the rookie replied, "I ain't used to walking up 17 flights of stairs everytime I want to go up to my room."

"Seventeen flights of stairs! Why, you numbskull, ride the elevator."

"Can't afford it, chief," explained the youngster seriously.

By this time the manager began to see the light. "You can't afford it, eh?" he said.

"No sir," went on the rookie. "One of the boys told me it cost 50 cents a ride, and at that rate I wouldn't have anything left. I'll be glad when we get out of this town."

ANOTHER story, which I can verify, concerns young Bob Feller, of the Cleveland Indians. But there was nothing wrong with Bob's thinking apparatus in this. It isn't that sort of story. It happens that Bob arrived for his baseball chores with three young rookies in tow. He registered in a hotel and then sought out the manager.

"I've got several kids with me," he said, "who can't afford to pay these rates. Of course, they could go to a cheaper hotel, but they are young and green, and I want them here with me. Now, what I want you to do is charge them $1.50 a day and put the balance on my bill. I don't want them to know I am paying the difference."

And that is what actually took place. The rookies remained several weeks at a swank hotel for the sum of $1.50 a day, never dreaming that several times that sum daily was added to Feller's account.

The man who told me this story was the manager himself. He thinks, and so does this reporter, that it was a fine, generous act on the part of Bob Feller.

CHAPTER I

Young Mr. Clayton Odell muttered to himself as he shifted his six-foot length on the floor boards of his canoe. There was uneasy caution in the procedure, for the bottom of the craft was heated to a high degree by the rays of a July sun. And Mr. Odell's costume at the moment consisted of trunks and a pair of blue-tinted glasses over his tightly closed eyes. Suddenly, his mumbled remarks rose to a startled cry.

"Hey! What the devil . . . !"

He jerked himself up to a sitting position, leaning involuntarily to starboard in response to an alarming tilt of the canoe. Almost at once he discovered the cause. A pair of hands was holding tightly to the port sponson and, even as the crew snatched off its spectacles for a clearer view of the situation, a bathing cap of brilliant-yellow rubber bobbed into view. Then the two wide-open gray eyes, filled with consternation.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" a feminine voice panted. The eyes and cap dropped from view as suddenly as they had emerged, but the voice continued. It was muffled, and plainly apologetic. "May I hang on here just a minute, please? I won't peek."

Odell grinned and picked up a folded jersey he had been using for a pillow. He wriggled his arms into its striped embrace and ran the fingers of one hand through his thick black hair before he spoke.

"The amenities are served,' was his brief announcement. "Come on up."

The cap and eyes promptly reappeared. With them was a small mouth, its pink lips pursed tightly. And a firm little chin that supported itself on the canoe sponson, a chin from which water trickled. 'That sounds like we were going to eat," the girl suggested with some difficulty.

"Maybe you'd better come aboard and get your breath," Odell countered. "Do you know how to climb into one of these things?"

"Sure," his caller obliged with a trace of scorn. "I believe I will, thanks."

Curiously, and not entirely without apprehension, the man watched a slim white leg flash into sight, saw a shapely heel secure a purchase on the rail. Swiftly, if not too gracefully, a slender body in a yellow swimming suit appeared, heaved itself aboard with a quick roll. An instant later, its owner was sitting cross-legged in the bottom of the canoe, breathing heavily but smiling.

"Very well done," her host complimented, wiping his face with the back of his hand. "Seeing we're unsinkable," he amended.

"Oh . . . did I splash you much? Were you afraid I'd upset you?"

"No indeed. But it's better to climb in at the bow or stern."

The girl unfastened the chin strap of her headgear, making a wry face as she removed it. She shook back her abundant chestnut hair and took a deep breath.

"Whew! That's better."

The cap interlude gave Odell an opportunity for a swift appraisal of the newcomer It began with her small feet, white and unblemished as a child's. Good-looking legs. A boyish body, almost without contours. A few pounds and in the proper places, would improve her figure greatly he decided She wasn't pretty, exactly. That funny little mouth gave her an innocent, wistful appearance which the large gray eyes enhanced. He found himself thinking suddenly that her last careless exclamation was oddly at variance with her face

"Were you trying to swim across the lake?" he wanted to know.

"Gracious, no! I was with some of the girls from the office this afternoon. But all they do is to wade and squeal or lie in the sand I'm trying to improve my distance. I was thinking about something else and, first thing I knew, I was tired . . . couldn't make up my mind whether to cut across to the Point or go back. Then I noticed your canoe. It looked like it was empty."

"Isn't this water rather deep to be undecided in?"

"Maybe. I guess I'm like that. I can make it back all right, after I get my breath."

"You'd better take your time. Or let me set you ashore. No hurry, either way."

"You must have been taking a sun bath," was her rejoinder. "Were you?"

"Sort of. Something got me down last spring. The doctor said the sun had some shot I needed . . . infra-violet or ultra-red rays. Whatever they are, they must be in magnificent form right now. I was just going to turn over and fry the other side when you happened in."

"Don't mind me. I won't stay but a minute."

"But I will. After all, a host has his duties. I'd rather talk. Care for a cigarette?"

"No thank you"

* * *

Odell rolled over and made a long reach into his end of the canoe. When he resumed his original position, he had a cigarette between his lips and a book of matches in one hand. The girl watched him with an air of pensive thoughtfulness as he blew a leisurely thread of smoke into the quiet air, watching it through half-closed eyes.

"You said you were going to talk," she reminded.

"Oh, I am. Merely doing a little deducing first. Want to hear about it?"

"Yes."

"This is Saturday afternoon. You said something about girls from the office. It's pretty deep, but I infer that you work in an office and that you live over in Norwood. How'm I doing?"

An affirmative nod encouraged him.

"I'm usually pretty good. But there's one thing that evades me. I'm trying to think of your name. And it just won't come. I keep getting Alice, but it doesn't seem quite right. It isn't Alice, is it?"

"Very nearly. You have three letters right. It's Hiliary."

"Of course! That's what I was trying for."

"Maybe I can save you some trouble with my last name." Hiliary suggested unsmilingly. "There's a 'y' in it . . . L-a-y-n-e."

"Hiliary Layne . . ." Odell repeated musingly. "I like that a lot. I don't know why, but it seems to suit you. Did anybody ever tell you so?"

"Not that I remember of."

"Then I'm glad I was the first. And my name is Odell. Clayton McMoran Odell. I hope you like some of it. There's a lot to choose from."

"It sounds very nice. Are you Irish?"

"Not for some time, anyway. Why? From the way I go on?"

'Oh, no. But it has an Irish sound. And you do have black hair and blue eyes. I've read or heard somewhere that combination is Irish."

"I believe I have, too. Now that you mention it. Maybe we did have an apostrophe once. I'm not very familiar with the family's ancient history.....its present struggles keep me busy."

He smiled engagingly with the last words. Hiliary liked the whimsical light in his eyes. And he did have a funny way of saying things. She found herself hoping that he would tell her who he was and where he came from. His next words were rather encouraging.

"Well, at least, we know who were are, now. Tell me, Hiliary Layne, do you like Norwood?"

"I suppose I do. I've never lived any other place."

"I've come to the conclusion that it's one of the most attractive places I've ever seen. This is a beautiful sheet of water. And the hills around the shore. It's like a picture. I'd never get tired of looking at it." His eyes wandered over the shimmering expanse of lake as he said it.

"I don't remember ever seeing you around Norwood," Hiliary experimented. "I thought I knew almost everybody in town . . . by sight," she amended. She was thinking to herself, that if she had missed a glimpse of this good-looking stranger, she would have heard of his presence. The office would have buzzed with the news.

"Oh, I haven't been staying in Norwood," Odell explained. "I'm . . . visiting nearby. Odd, but I've so fallen in love with this country. I believe I would like to stay . . . have a job, you know. Do you think that would be a fair idea? Your advice should be good. After what you've just told me."

Hiliary slowly shook his head.

"You'd be silly."

"Why?"

"Because you'd almost have to work for Norwood Mills. There isn't much of anything else here."

"So I've noticed. From the feeling way you speak, I've an idea that you're employed there."

"Oh, I am."

"What's the matter with the place . . . aside from looking a trifle shabby?"

"They don't pay anything. They don't have to. But you take it, unless you want to leave home. And jobs aren't plentiful. Do you know anything about stockings?"

"I'll admit to having an eye for them when they're in action. If you're speaking technically, my ignorance is pretty abysmal."

"And it's a cinch you don't know old Mr. Wardlaw, either," Hiliary returned shortly.

"He's the party who owns the mill, isn't he?"

"I'll say he is! And he acts as if he owned everybody in it. Or he'd like to."

"H . . . m. Sounds interesting. If you're in his office, I dare say you have a firsthand acquaintance with the big heel and toe man."

The girl's gray eyes twinkled.

"I'm not so sure about the 'toe,' Mr. Odell. And he's a little man. Sort of shriveled up and grouchy."

Odell's merry laugh rang across the water.

"That's good!" he chuckled. "I mean the old gentleman sounds very nice and Schoogish. Tell me more about him."

You'll find out plenty for yourself, if you try for a job at the place. Mr. Wardlaw does most of the hiring himself. And firing, too. That's one thing I came near to finding out this week. Firsthand."

"I'm glad you didn't. What happened? Or would you rather not say."

Hiliary studied her right foot. She wiggled her toes reflectively before she answered. It had just occurred to her that she was speaking rather freely to a perfect stranger. But, for some reason, Mr. Odell didn't seem at all like a stranger.

"Oh, it wasn't much," she said indifferently. "You see, Old Rommy . . . I didn't mean to call him that. But almost everyone calls him that, behind his back. It's because his first name is Romulus."

"Quaint enough," Odell offered helpfully.

"I think it's a dumb name. But I was starting to say that we have only one stenographer in the office and she has taken Mr. Wardlaw's dictation for years and years. Her name's Miss Harrison. She never misses a day at the office. But this week somebody died and she had to go to the funeral . . . out of town.

"Well, that afternoon the boss came tapping out of his room . . . he has to walk with a cane all the time . . . and he fairly glared at us There was a letter he wanted to get in the evening mail and he wanted to know if any of us could write it for him . . ."

"And you volunteered?"

"I didn't do anything else! You see I had started to take a course in shorthand and typewriting once. But I got tired of it and dropped the lessons. I thought, maybe, a bluff would get me something."

"And what happened."

"Oh, I made a lot of funny little marks on a paper while Rommy rattled on. All the time I was stretching my brains to the breaking point, trying to remember what he said. The only thing I really got on paper was the man's name. When he finished dictating, he went out into the mill and I sat down at Harrison's machine and tried to remember what the letter was about. It was pretty bad, I guess. But I did write something and left it on his desk and went back to my own job. I do filing and help with the accounts. Before Rommy came back, I got all my things together and said good-by to the girls."

"Your letter must have been pretty bad," Odell grinned.

"Well, it didn't get in the mail," Hiliary admitted. "And Rommy did tell me why. I'm pretty sure the only reason he didn't fire me was because my daddy was one of his foremen for years and years. Oh, well . . ." She reached out for her rubber cap and prepared to don it. "I think I'll plunge in. I'm rested now. Thanks a lot."

"Sit still," Odell directed. "It's my turn for some exercise. We'll hit over to the shore where it's shady. Then I'll land you wherever you like."

"Are you sure you don't want to finish your sun bath?"

"Positive. I'll prop a seatback behind you and you can stretch out more comfortably."

* * *

A moment later, Odell was sending his light craft over the surface of the lake with leisurely strokes of his paddle. Hiliary watched him interestedly.

"I wish I could do that," she said at length.

"Do what?"

"Make a canoe go straight with a single paddle. It always decides to go around in rings for me."

"That's because you don't give the blade the right twist. I'll give you a lesson sometime, if you like. That is, if I decide to try for that job. You haven't done much to encourage me."

"I shouldn't have said what I did. I'm sorry."

"I'm not. I think it was very sporting of you. You've no idea how carefully I intend to weigh your words. It's a big help."

Hiliary darted a suspicious glance at her new friend, but the blue eyes that met her gaze were guileless. Little more was said until the canoe, coasting along the beach, came to a hill that sloped up from the water to a somewhat higher altitude than its neighbors. On its summit stood a square house of dull red brick crowned with a square cupola, the whole edifice partly screened by a number of large pines that furnished a gloomy and forbidding aspect to the residence, despite the bright sunshine. The girl seated in the bottom of the canoe waved carelessly with her yellow cap.

"That's where Mr. Wardlaw lives, if you don't know," she offered.

Odell allowed the canoe to drift as he surveyed the old mansion.

"Well," decided the young man soberly, "from your account, it looks like a fitting frame for our industrial baron. Lightning rods and everything. Should be quite Victorian within."

"I don't know. I've never been farther than the door...an errand now and then for Dad. When I was a kid. There's an iron dog in the front yard. Or there was."

"That completes the picture," Odell chuckled, dipping his paddle in the water once more.

"The poor old man lives there all by himself," Hiliary mused.

"Yes? That ought to make it nice for a lot of others."

"I mean he has no family. There's a woman who does the housekeeping, a Mrs. Kime. She's so rusty-looking you can almost hear her creak when she moves. Her husband takes care of the outside work and drives Rommy's old car. Only three people in that big place."

"A well-assorted household, I'd say. Speaking of such....May I ask you something? You have mentioned your father several times. Is he in Mr. Wardlaw's employ...now?"

"No," Hiliary said slowly. "He's dead."

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—it's time you asked yourself some questions!

What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

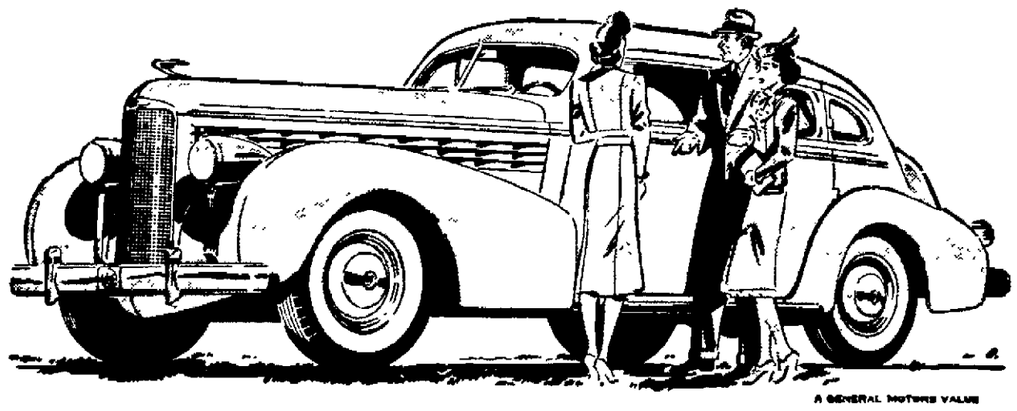
Before you pay above $1000 for a motor car- LOOK AT LASALLE!



A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

MOST PEOPLE WILL AGREE that the motorist who pays the price of a LaSalle ought to get a LaSalle.

Yet, many do not. They make an expenditure which entitles them to Cadillac quality, Cadillac safety and prestige—but fail to secure them.

This is undoubtedly due to a misunderstanding as to the cost of a new LaSalle. Because LaSalle's reputation is so fine, they think the price must be high.

V-8 CADILLAC ENGINE

However, this is not the case. There are actually eleven motor car manufacturers who have models costing more than a new LaSalle V-8.

Before you invest—investigate. If you expect to spend above $1.000 for your next car—come in and look at LaSalle.

Fires Back at Davey on 'Legal' Campaign Donations

AID OF DUFFY SAYS STATE'S LAW VIOLATED

Stephenson Terms Governor's Voluntary Contributions 'Absolutely Illegal.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Gov. Martin L. Davey's assertion that acceptance of voluntary political campaign contributions from classified employes "is entirely legal" was answered today by an assistant attorney general who said that it was "absolutely illegal."

"Our committee established certain rules," the governor said in his weekly radio broadcast last night. "One was that the civil service laws should be respected and that nothing but voluntary contributions should be accepted from those under civil service, which is entirely legal."

Will P. Stephenson, former Ohio supreme court justice and an assistant to Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy, replied:

"It is my opinion that it is absolutely illegal."

Probe Nearly Complete.

Meanwhile Duffy announced that his grand jury investigation into charges that classified employes were solicited by contributions to Governor Davey's third-term campaign fund would end sometime next week.

"We are getting a pretty good cross-section of every state department," he commented. "There have been violations in certain departments but not in all." He said that if any "higher-ups" were summoned, the jury would not hear them until next week.

The governor's address replied to charges of fund solicitations hurled at him last week by Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman and Davey's opponent in the August primary.

"For many years . . . campaign funds have been raised in part by contributions from those who are given jobs," the governor said.

"If a few of our friends have been a little over-zealous, it is a matter of regret, but I do not propose to make any cheap grandstand play and run out on them."

The governor replied to Sawyer's charges that Davey's aids were collecting a campaign fund out of proportion to the needs of a primary by saying:

"Why, bless his (Sawyer's) aching heart, our committee is raising a campaign fund for the fall election, because he does not have the slightest chance of being nominated. . . ."

Taxpayers Foot $1,000,000 Bill For Legislature

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— With the fourth session or the 92nd general assembly called for next Monday and a fifth promised by Gov. Martin L. Davey next fall, the state auditor's office revealed today that the legislature's activities already have cost Ohio taxpayers more than $1,000,000.

Since the assembly convened in regular session in January, 1937, it has completed one regular session and two special sessions. The fourth and fifth meetings which are in prospect probably will give it an unrivaled place in the number of sessions and in the amount of expenditures.

The auditor's office presented tabulations showing the exact cost from Jan. 1, 1937, to May 4, 1938, as $1,111,467.72.

The house of representatives has spent $745,381.40, while the senate costs amount to $366,085.32.

Up and Down THE STREET

Women who go shopping with an open shopping bag on their arm will be surprised to know that they are pretty generally watched, regardless of who they are. The wave of shoplifting which has swept Mansfield in the last year or two has taught merchants and clerks that practically all women shoplifters are adept at dropping articles into an open bag. But one of the "lifters" was a little reckless this morning when she took several handkerchiefs from a Main street store. The police cruiser with Officers George Yoakum and Clare Kyler was parked in front of the open store door and when the proprietor gave them a signal they stopped the woman as she walked out. No arrest was made however, when the proprietor let her go with a warning to stay out of the store.

Mansfield may produce another Duke Ellington, for the dimmutive colored boy, Lincoln Adkinson, who leads the Kindergarten Rhythm band of the Friendly House puts a lot of "umph" in his baton waving. The band was enthusiastically received last night at the Community Fund campaign meeting at First Methodist Episcopal church, and Lincoln was easily the star. The little leader struts in his uniform of white duck trousers, red military coat, and a high white Cossack hat. He keeps remarkably good time with his white baton, and manages to keep his 18 young musicians in line, despite a trailing note now and then.

There's not much danger of eviction for the Robin Redbreast that built its nest at Senior high school. She picked out the one place where her nest was least likely to be disturbed while she hatches her young—an inverted electric light globe at the rear entrance of the building. CHIROPRACTORS FINED, WARNED

Trio Told Court Will Invoke Suspended Prison Terms If Violations Are Repeated.

Found guilty of illegal advertising, three Mansfield chiropractors yesterday were assessed fines ranging from $150 to $250 and given suspended workhouse sentences by Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court.

A fourth practitioner, listed as a "psychologist," pleaded guilty to the same charge and was fined $25 and costs. Charges were filed by Laurence Dietrich, Cleveland, inspector for the state medical board, who appeared as a witness.

Fines of $250 each and 90-day workhouse sentences were imposed on Mrs. Flo A. Morris, 78 Park avenue west, and Glen G. Armold, 77 West Fourth street. The sentences and $150 of each of the fines were suspended by Judge Huston. Both had been cited several times before on the same charges.

Benjamin L. Sites, 190 West Fourth street, a chiropractor, was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in the Columbus workhouse. The sentence and $100 of the fine were suspended. The three were found guilty of advertising as engaged in medical practice without obtaining state permits.

David E. Jones, of 8 East Fourth street, described in the affidavit as a "psychologist," was fined $25 and costs as a first offender. Jones was accused of advertising as a "healer" without a license.

In imposing the sentences, Judge Huston warned the offenders that he intended to stop the repeated violation of the state medical code and that any future infraction would mean full payment of the fines and serving of the workhouse sentences.

PERSONALITY CAN BE DEVELOPED WITH STUDY, FOREMEN ARE TOLD

Describing personalities as "minus, zero, or plus" in their effect on other people, Dr. Frank D. Slutz, Dayton lecturer and educator, outlined a five-point program for personality building in a talk last night before the Mansfield Foremen's club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

He spoke on "Is Personality an Enigma?" and before he had completed his lecture he had pictured personality as a tangible thing that can be developed with study.

Meeting in its last regular session this spring, the club elected William M. Weldon, jr., of the Ohio Brass company, president to succeed C. F. Beddard of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Other officers chosen for the 1938-39 season were Jay S. Cairns, of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, vice president; Edwin Geiger, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, secretary, and F. R. Glessner, Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, treasurer.

Elected to the club's board of control were A. L. Allen, Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company; G. O. Shilling, Shelby Sales Book company; R. E. Dewey, Ohio Seamless Tube company, and D. H. Cox, Shelby Spring Hinge company.

Dr. Slutz, five suggestions for improvement of the personality and ultimate increase in individual popularity were:

1—A deeper interest in skill of our own vocations; 2—Interest in learning; 3—Interest in welfare of others; 4—Interest in the community; 5—Interest in the great mass of truth we don't know.

"Personality is the power to influence other people permanently, and we need it in everything," Dr. Slutz said. "If we have the ability to captivate and interest others, we have great power within ourselves."

Pointing out that not all people have an equal chance in the development of personality, he asserted that "It is only partly true that we are born with the power of personality. Some people have more than others, but every man can improve what he has to start with," he added.

FRIDAY IN RACE

Seeks Republican Nomination for Commissioner.

John C. Friday, Springfield township, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for county commissioner. He is the first Republican to announce for any of the three county offices to be filled at the November election.

Friday served a four-year term from 1928 to 1932, but was defeated in 1932 and in 1936.

If nominated in August, Friday probably will oppose C. L. Mitchell, incumbent Democrat, who is a candidate for re-election. Democratic party leaders are of the opinion that Mitchell will have no oposition at the primary.

Friday said he chose to run for commissioner after learning that Harry Maxwell, Lexington, would run for representative on the Republican ticket. Maxwell has not formally announced his candidacy.

SEEKS TO PASS SPENDING PLAN IN NEXT 2 DAYS

Leaders Press $3,000,000,000 Drive for Needy; Little Opposition Foreseen.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The administration's $3,054,425,000 omnibus recovery bill will mean jobs for 4,135,000 persons during the next 12 months, the house appropriations committee declared today as it formally reported the huge measure to the house for debate.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — House passage by Thursday of a $3,000,000,000 relief and public works bill became the immediate goal today of administration leaders, intent on adjourning congress by mid-June.

They decided to begin debate during the afternoon, and predicted little opposition outside the Republican ranks.

The legislation, key item in the $4,500,000,000 pump-priming program, would end the practice of giving lump-sum relief appropriations to the president. It would retain for him, however, the right to pass on all work relief and public works projects.

Outright appropriations of $2,519,425,000 are included. The Works Progress armistration would receive the largest share—$1,250,000,000—to provide 2,800,000 jobs from July 1 to next Feb. 1.

$965,000,000 For PWA.

The Public Works administration, which would be extended to June 30, 1940, would be given $965,000,000 for construction projects.

Directing their activities toward an early end to the session, house chieftains arranged to interrupt the relief debate, probably tomorrow, to accept a compromise on the tax revision bill and send it to the White House. The senate approved the tax legislation yesterday.

A movement to speed up action on the wage-hour bill also picked up momentum. Two Republican members of the rules committee, Representative Mapes (R-Mich) and McLean (R-NJ), announced they would support a resolution by Chairman O'Connor (D-NY) to permit the house to consider it even before the petition becomes effective May 23.

Their votes apparently were enough to assure the committee's approval of the resolution.

All regular appropriations bills have passed the house, and another one—a $1,104,000,000 measure for the agriculture department—went through the senate yesterday.

ILL 10 WEEKS

William Metcalf, 47, Native of Ashland County.

ASHLAND—William Earl Metcalf, 47, a native of Ashland county, died Monday evening at his home five miles east of here. He had been ill ten weeks.

Born Feb. 25, 1891 near Jeromesville, Mr. Metcalf spent his entire life in Ashland county, was a member of the Jeromesville Methodist church, and had been employed at the F. E. Myers company here for the past 12 years.

Surviving are his wife Hazel; a son, Kenneth; three daughters, Helen, Ruth and Phyllis, all at home; five brothers, Frank of Hayesville, Irwin of Ashland, Alvin of Jeromesville, and Harley and Paul both at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Leah Clark of near Jeromesville, and Mrs. Vera Gavin of Columbiana.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the home with Rev. C. A. Heln, pastor of the Dickey church, officiating. Burial will be in Jeromesville cemetery.

FAIR ENOUGH!

You Can Have Big Game, Mr. Roosevelt; Pegler Can't Ever Catch Them

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Every man to his own run, but I once took a little whirl at that deep sea, or dipsey, fishing, as they call it, and if there are any of those St. Bernard or Great Dane fish allotted to me, Mr. Roosevelt may have them.

I got caught up on that kind of fishing in the space of about three days several years ago. We went out in a couple of little party boats, and all the way down to the fishing place, Charlie Canoy, the press agent for Henry Doherty's hotels, was telling us about the fish we were going to catch. We were going after tarpon, for choice, but the water was supposed to be absolutely reeking of all kinds of fish with queer names like dace, mace, place, roach, poach, gudgeon, mullet, grommet and shovelnose duebills.

We got to the place, anchored, rigged up a lot of tackle with hooks the size of those on which they hang half-cows in butcher shops, and went out trolling in small launches. The sun was fierce. We trolled for several hours in the morning, came back, had some beans and coffee, trolled all afternoon and came back to bed down in little bunks. We didn't catch any fish, but Charlie said they would probably be running next day.

They weren't, nor the third day, either. By that time we dudes, or tourists, in the party were burned as red as fire engines and the mosquitoes were coming out in absolute clouds. Jimmy Pergola, a newsreel man, said one mosquito bit a hunk out of him and flew up a tree to eat it, but dropped it in the water with a big splash while whetting its bill on a limb.

"And a shark came up and snagged it," Jimmy said. "Don't tell me sharks don't eat people meat."

Charlie did catch a little shark about 4 feet long on a small rod one night and it wrestled him all over the dory.

He flopped among the seats, got tangled up in a lot of rope and fishline, fell on his face, skinned up his nose, elbows and shins and looked like a preliminary boy by the time one of the Florida conchs (guides) reached over the side, grabbed the shark with his hands, slit it along the keel with the bread knife and tossed it back in the water.

"That ought chum up some grownup sharks," he said. This one had half-killed our pal and it was only a fingerling.

I don't know; maybe it's just me. Other people catch fish, but I never can.

I can't play golf, either. I started trying 15 years ago, and you would think I would be getting hot by now. But I'm worse than ever. I have had dozens of lessons, and from good instructors, too. Pull in your neck, keep your ears well apart, swivel on your back spin, turn your hand further over. Nuts. If I haul off and clout it, the ball does an outcurve and comes back like a boomerang.

If I baby it to prevent the hook, it goes pt-pt-pt three yards and stops, and the dolls sitting on the veranda laugh shrilly. It is a terrible way to be. I have broken 100 only once. Everybody beats me, even women and cartoonists.

When I was a kid I was a punk ball player. I liked to, but I just wasn't any good. Football the same. Skating, too.

I play a little poker, but I always lose.

I try to live right and follow the instructions, but it never makes any difference.

Maybe this is what makes me so mean.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The irony of it all: Errol Flynn, off yachting, pleads illness and gets an extended vacation after smash preview success of "Robin Hood." Bette Davis, at home, pleading illness and disapproval of proffered script, gets suspension after smash box-office success of "Jezebel."

Philatelists—stamp-collectors to me—in the various studios are going to be organized to turn the vast stamp riches from star fan mail over to the movie relief fund. . . . Committee includes rabid personal collectors Adolphe Menjou, F. Herrick Herrick, the directors, Sherman Lowe, the writer, and Jack Cooper, the publicity man. . . . Collectors like Menjou, Shirley Temple, Jane Withers and Noel Madison are to be asked to turn their duplicates into the fund . . . Hoped to realize about $15,000 a year from stamps, with fans being urged to help out by posting their letters with fancy ones.

Rarety: Gene Raymond, the screen's only violently blond leading man. (Leslie Howard's just off-blond.)

Saw Pat O'Brien looking very silly in a silken turban and dress-suit for "Garden of the Moon," after which I didn't wonder that his pet immediate film interest is a screen-biography of J. P. Murphy, the "stormy petrel of American surgery" . . . But maybe there's no connection.

Columbia—just as if you and I hadn't enough to do—wants help in casting a "Golden Boy" from the Clifford Odets play . . . Character described as "a rugged young man who is both a prize fighter and a violinist with fragile dreams of artistic fame." . . . Might be Joel McCrea, or what do you think?

Fernand Gravet, growing a mustache he isn't certain he'll wear in his new picture, was a little upset . . . Had just been told to learn dances, violin and piano—and they'd given him three weeks.

Claude Rains ducks away to his Pennsylvania farm every chance he gets—and his best friend there is his neighbor, a Dutch farmer. . . . On Rains' last trip he became an American citizen . . . Quote: "Everything good has happened to me in America—This is a lively, energetic country and I'm glad to be part of it."

CONVENTION REPORT PRESENTED BY REGENT

Mrs. Weston Cutter Gives Talk at Regular Meeting of Mary Washington Chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. Fred Herring Entertains.

HIGHLIGHTS from the Daughters of the American Revolution convention which was held in Washington, D. C., recently were presented yesterday by Mrs. Weston Cutter, regent, at the meeting of the Mary Washington chapter at the home of Mrs. Fred Herring, 419 West Third street. Mrs. Cutter gave a complete convention report and spoke particularly of the appearance of President Roosevelt at the meeting.

Reports of the convention of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Northwest Territory celebration were also given. The regent presided throughout the business session.

Mrs. John Summers and Mrs. V. V. Vining were welcomed into the chapter at this meeting.

Associate hosteseses for the affair were Mrs. C. G. Hillier, Mrs. C. H. Workman and Mrs. Edward Loughridge. Tea was served by the hostess with Mrs. Avery Hand and Mrs. D. N. Roller pouring.

The next meeting will be the annual Flag day picnic and will be held at Mrs. Cutter's home, 490 Park avenue west. This will be June 14.

A. A. U. W. To Give Tea For Graduates At Westbrook Club

On behalf of the American Association of University Women, Mrs. Merritt Giles extended a personal invitation today to girls of Mansfield high school to attend a tea at the Westbrook Country club, May 24. Both January and June graduates are to be guests.

The tea, as Mrs. Giles explained, is being sponsored by the A. A. U. W. in connection with its program to further educational interest among Mansfield girls. The A. A. U. W. is, at present, engaged in raising a scholarship fund of $5,000 to be used as a loan fund for Mansfield girls who desire to further their educations. The first award of the group was made last year to Miss Thelma Still.

Those in charge of the affair at the club include Mrs. R. D. Campbell, Miss Margaret Clapsaddle, Miss Pearl Danbeck, Mrs. Edward Gibson, Miss Margaret West, Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus, and Mrs. Giles.

Mrs. Fatkin Guest at Personal Shower Party

Mixed bouquets of pink and blue sweetpeas and lilies-of-the-valley decorated the tables yesterday when Mrs. Edward Fatkin was honored by friends at a personal shower. The party was given by Mrs. Joseph Kulka at her home on Springmill street.

Bridge was played and the high score prize was won by Miss Emily Cox. The color scheme was carried out in pink and blue and appropriate favors were given to each guest.

Recent Bride Honored At Home of Miss Yohn

The home of Miss Mary Myrtle Yohn, Trimble road, was the scene recently of a post-nuptial shower given in honor of Mrs. Richard Parkison (Pauline Thrush). The evening was spent in playing monopoly with prizes being awarded to the Misses Mildred Strome and Miriam Johnson.

Luncheon was served at small tables decorated with carnations and mixed spring flowers. An alcove was decorated with a rainbow and pot of gold and miscellaneous shower gifts were arranged under an imitation shower for the honoree. She was also presented with the game prizes. Members of the Community club will entertain for Mrs. Parkison tomorrow evening.

Mrs. B. L. Sites Has Church Class Meeting

There were 25 members and one guest present yesterday when Mrs. B. L. Sites entertained members of the Madam Cotta class of the First Lutheran church at her home, 188 West Fourth street. She was assisted by Mrs. Clayton Mowry, Mrs. Harvey Dickson, Mrs Earl Saltzgaber, and Miss Pearl Adams.

Opening the program was the president who presented Mrs. William Layton. Mrs. Layton reviewed "Heads and Tales" by Melvina Hoffman. The next meeting will be June 13 with the place to be announced later.

Smart Details

(By Central Press)

Flattering touches of white, especially at the throat, are becoming to women who are no longer girls, and who wear what is known as "women's sizes." They are being used extensively on this type of frock.

This slim, one-piece frock is designed in larger sizes, and is made of a gaily floral printed rayon crepe for a slenderizing effect.

Short puffed sleeves and attractive touches of white at the square neck are smart fashion points, and there are pleats in the front of the skirt to give sufficient width for comfortable walking.

A full-length redingote of navy rayon sheer creates a smart ensemble for street wear.

GUILD PLAYS BRIDGE.

Mrs Lewis Hehman was hostess yesterday for contract bridge when members of St. Peter's guild met at her home on Western avenue. Those awarded score prizes were Mrs. P. J. Kelley and Mrs. Frank Voegele. The next meeting will be a dessert-luncheon at the home of Mrs. George Holland at 1 p. m. May 23.

Canton Club Offers Program At Music Group Final Session

AT THE final meeting of the Music Study club for this year members of the Canton MacDowell Music club presented a program of selections by Jean Sibelius at the Women's Club following a dinner. Miss Florence MacDonald, honorary member of the Canton club, introduced the artists.

Opening the program was Mrs. Eva Kennedy Smith who gave the biographical information on the composer and the program notes. Later she presented a dramatic Norwegian story. Mrs. Leora K. Herrold, pianist, played three numbers, "Elegie," "Musette," and "Nocturne" from the King Christian suite.

Voice selections by Mrs. Sylvia Latz included "Tryst" and "Ingelill." The quintet then presented "Valse Triste" and "Allegro." Members of the quintet were Gail W. Cable, Gladys Lazarus, Mrs. Latz, Grace B. Penninman and Mildred Dauer.

Among the guests present was Mrs. James Wood, Marion, honorary and charter member of the Mansfield organization. Mrs. Scott Coffin received and she was assisted by the executive and program committees.

The full chorus of the club will present "The Christ In the World" by Nobel Cain Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m. at the First Congregational church. Miss Elizabeth Burneson will give the organ prelude and LeMoine Derr will be director. This program is public, Mrs. Edward Gibson, president, stated.

Church Conducts Annual Banquet

There were 100 guests present last night for the annual mother-daughter banquet which was held at the First Lutheran church. Long tables were decorated in pastel colors with spring flowers and tapers. Small potted plants were presented to each mother present. During the dinner a string quintet played.

The guest speaker, Miss Mazie Swearingen, Springfield, was introduced and toasts were given by Miss Mary Lou Hout and Mrs. Earl Dye. Special music was offered by Miss Ruth Lieghley, Mrs. Lewis Cashell and Mrs. Clayson Bell.

Concluding the affair was a play, "Recompense," offered by the Misses Margaret Stevenson, Reba Robinson, Ruth Dye, and Miriam Dye.

Lo and Le Club Gives Tea Sunday Afternoon

Miss Wanda Emmer, South Franklin street, was hostess Sunday when members of the Lo and Le club entertained their mothers at a Mother's day tea. Corsages were given as favors to each mother and the table was decorated with a bowl of roses and sweetpeas. Miss Mary Smith presided at the tea table.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the affair was composed of Miss Emmer, Miss Norma Harrison and Miss Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Haupt of Cleveland spent the week-end at the home of Mr. Haupt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haupt, West Third street.

STRIPES "IN" AGAIN

Stripes are "in" again in the new cottons, with colors that are fresh looking and, needless to say, bright. There are plaids, too, shown in the swatches of the Cotton-Textile institute. Many jolly little prints are included as well as florals and conventional patterns. One has a black background with gay little Swiss figures on a curved line to represent a mountain. It is labeled, "If a yodel could be printed, it might look like this." The peasant influence is noted in several designs.

Legion Auxiliary Hears Reports By Committee Heads

Mrs. Eugene Flory president of the American Legion auxiliary was in charge when the organization held its regular meeting at the Legion home yesterday. Mrs. Herman Hautzenroeder, rehabilitation chairman, gave a report on welfare work done for ex-service men's families.

Mrs. Carl Kahl reported flowers sent to members of the auxiliary who are ill. It was reported that the Mother's club met Wednesday for the making of poppy wreaths for Poppy day. The next meeting of this group will be May 18. Mrs. Hollis Moorhead, poppy chairman, is making arrangements for Poppy day which will be May 28.

The program was opened by Mrs. Robert Jones who gave a talk telling of her visit to the poppy shop at the Sandusky Soldiers' home. This talk was followed by a short Mother's day program. Mrs. Jones will be social chairman for the next meeting which will be May 28.

Mrs. Friday Hostess to Mary Voegele Society

The Mary Voegele Missionary society of St. Matthew's Lutheran church met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Dale Friday Penn avenue. The meeting was opened with devotions which were read by Mrs. D. J. Lamneck and the business session was presided over by Miss Doris Bush. Plans were discussed for the mother-daughter banquet to be held May 20 in Shennandoah.

Mrs. Charles Sheriff was in charge of the program for the day and her subject was "The Mohammedan Customs of Yesterday and Today." There was one guest present at the meeting, Mrs. Floyd Hunt. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William Mabee, Atcheson avenue, June 13.

Mrs. Boals Hostess to P.T.A. Council Board

Mrs. F. D. Boals, president of the Mansfield Council of Parent Teachers' associations, entertained the 22 members of the executive board of the council last night at a dinner at the Lincoln Life Insurance company dining room. Mrs. Boals' daughters, Miss Jean and Miss Marjorie, served the dinner.

Reports of all standing committees were given and then W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, introduced the survey and recommendation for a building program for the schools which was devised by Dr. T. C. Holy and his associates.

A resolution to recommend and indorse the expansion of the Mansfield public schools to the Board of Education was adopted by the council.

LOSES 98 LBS.!
Cheno Plan Reduces Waistline 22 Inches
"These pictures prove I lost 98 pounds of fat. In 1931 I weighed 238 pounds, wore size 56 dresses with GUSSETS set in sleeves and hips. I had an operation. I tried starvation, difficult exercises and EVERY reducing formula I saw advertised—and yet I continued to pile on weight. Then I started the CHENO PLAN. Now I weigh 140 pounds, wear size 18 in misses' dresses. All my friends can hardly believe that such a MARVELOUS change could take place. My doctor says I'm 100% physically."—Suzanna Thompson.
100 Fat Women Reduced In Tests With Cheno Plan
—all victims of nutritional obesity—without exception, reduced through the waistline and hips first. They showed a marked improvement in skin and muscular tone. Some women HAVE REDUCED FROM SEVEN TO OVER ELEVEN POUNDS IN THIRTY DAYS . . . with improved health and no harm to physical condition.
Where your excess ugly fat is due to lack of calcium or iodine or to acidosis combined with a high caloric intake—the CHENO PLAN will reduce your body measurements . . . take excess pounds off your weight giving you a more slender, graceful figure—without in any way endangering your health. Your skin and general muscular tone will improve as your fat falls away.
